Thread: Hot Tea or Cold Tea?

clean - October 6, 2021, 12:00 am

So, i'm American...

I like my tea ICE cold, and sweet. I think that's the way to go. Lots of ICE & sweet tea. How do you like your tea?

Net - October 6, 2021, 12:03 am

Depends on the weather. If it is cold tea has to be hot af. If it is hot, I like iced tea and iced cold coffee.

I don't think hot tea is really an american thing, maybe so? Are you American?

Kaiba Corp - October 6, 2021, 12:04 am

With this one I don't have an issue, I'd say depends on the weather. Iced tea in summer feels good.

Hmm I only have tried hot tea with my ex lady back in the day. Put some honey in the tea & it wasn't bad!

If we're getting technical, tea is an Asian thing, but nowadays almost every country drinks hot tea.

Hot tea!!

I do like iced tea tho, bang bang

Xen - October 6, 2021, 1:33 am

Being British, I mainly go for hot tea.

When I'm looking for a cold drink I usually go for iced coffee, but I do enjoy some iced tea from time to time.

I'm not a massive fan of tea, I'm a coffee person. My girlfriend on the other hand is very English and loves the stuff

[$(5)$] - October 6, 2021, 1:49 am

Hot tea is my preference between the two rainy - October 6, 2021, 9:40 am

I drink cold tea only when I made tea and forgot about it

False King - October 6, 2021, 9:44 am

No tea. Fuck tea. I literally hate tea.

I do drink ice tea sometimes though. But only when it's mixed with alcohol.

Not really, I have long periods where I don't drink any tea, but when I buy a pack I drink it till its done. Chamomille has something to it, its floral, mellow and sweet, especially with honey. On a cold winter night I like apple cinammon tea, or strawberry vanilla. I also quite often drink green tea when I'm trying to cut down on coffee, it's not as disgusting as I remember it and it has a lot of benefits.

Beherit - October 6, 2021, 9:53 am

I love iced tea, even in the Winter time. It's very refreshing to have during the day.

Both! I drink iced tea the most, as it's what I predominately drink during the day. Usually Pure Leaf, but if I am home I'll make my own via loose tea.

But that said, I drink a hot cup of tea almost every night.

Either way- I take my tea unsweetened and without milk.

Same here, but I'm half British. Classic hot tea: Earl Grey or PG Tips.

Calibur - October 14, 2021, 4:49 am

Definitely hot. Cold plain tea makes me puke, it's like im zipping straight from a tree branch or somthng.

Koyote - October 14, 2021, 4:54 am

Hot tea on a cold day, iced tea when it's warm or when I'm working out in the garden. I'm about to start making garlic tea to try and sort out my sinuses at the moment, for some reason I'm flaring up bad and my usual tea and honey combo isn't doing the trick.

Lyrice - October 14, 2021, 5:13 am

Hot tea is often too earthy and rich for those who don't drink it on a regular basis, plus peer-reviewed research has found that drinking "hot" beverages causes a spike in your heart rate. It's not the temperature you're drinking that does this, but rather the effects of caffeine or other stimulants found in your drink.

Sigma - October 14, 2021, 5:37 am

For some reason, I could not get into Hot tea after trying many times. Cold is good tho.

SIM-3387369 - October 14, 2021, 5:43 am

I prefer sweet iced tea, but hot tea with honey is nice when I'm having pains or during the winter.
