Thread: Websites to follow crypto news/tips?

Cyam - October 8, 2021, 5:57 am

What are some good websites where you follow current happenings in crypto and what could be a potentially good investment?

I'm looking for some ideas, thank you boys!

You will always find the latest news on twitter first, but if you prefer news articles I suggest:

Can you recommend some users to follow on Twitter regarding the crypto?

I like using CoinMarketCal. It's not always accurate, but the community voting process is useful:

I like the news on Coindesk.com. It's pretty straightforward industry news beyond pump and dumps. I find it important.

That's more opinions and editorials.

I guess the OP asked for news and tips. I just think these are not the same. That news sites provide valuable information about the market while tip sites push what they want you to buy because they bought it.

Coindesk for instance will break news about a new crypto partnership and then that crypto upticks. Coindesk speaks more about the overall market than most sites.

Like a couple days ago they discussed some new Stablecoin report.

I think real crypto news is way more important than bloggers pushing pumps.

coingecko.com is what I have been using for last 6 months.

Hope it will help.

Good Luck
