Thread: Tomorrow my account will be 3,000 days old

[$(5)$] - October 17, 2021, 7:17 pm

Kind of crazy to think that I registered 3,000 days ago tomorrow. I know there are those that have been here even longer.

3,000 is many days. And I'm thankful that HF is still here and kicking.

How many days have you been here?

As am I. The restrictions have caused a lot of delays in plans I've had. Hoping they are done for at least another 20-30 years LOL

Been here for 3546 days.

I believe being online on site is a big achievement instead. Calculating days is not. One can create an account and never look back for years. Your online time is 'Time Online: 1 Month, 2 Weeks, 6 Days'

And mine is Time Online: 6 Months, 3 Weeks

I appreciate you pointing that out. This wasn't to compete with other users, simply to share a milestone of my own. I'm very aware I'm not the oldest nor most active user. I'm glad that you have 6 months of time to dedicate to being online within HF, that is awesome. ?

Not competing but it was just in my opinion. I don't feel that the days from the date of registration count for me. I also appreciate you giving away to the community, you have been very generous in the past few months and it won't be long for you to reach 1 year online time.

Actually I was looking up ways to stop being booted offline by some weirdos on a game server I played as a kid. ? It led me to HF after a friend said that's where everyone purchased their stress testing/ddos services. So I figured they'd have the answers on how to stop it/prevent it also. Sure enough, figured out what I needed to know and got them to stop after joining HF.

Been here since. No regrets either.

100% agree. DDoS attacks are pretty boring, unless it's some really big attack that even the news write about. And swatting is just childish and stupid.

What do you mean by you managed it? Did you own it or proxy sell it?

I agree. Never saw the purpose in swatting either. I've never been an ego maniac so don't get easily triggered enough to make dumb decisions like that I guess.

I managed everything but backend. Support, subscriptions, advertising. Owner was still on HF, and it was one of the best Devs that worked on it too tbh. Good times.

Yeah, swatting is just dumb. I mean you could literally risk a life, if police will not be able to get to someone else who actually needs them quick enough, just because you wanted to have some 'fun'.

And that's awesome man! You are a front end dev?
