Hypothetically speaking, lets use Adderall as an example.

USA only, should have specified.

It might depend on the country, but here in Canada you have to at least speak to the doctor on the phone to get the prescription approval.

In Denmark we can do it all online. However most doctors still wanna talk in person to you, they are just a bit old school.

Yes and Yes

We can see patients completely via our practices EMS and then electronically prescribe their medications as well.

I've done several times already especially during this COVID pandemic.

for us not sure but here you can talk through the phone and then pickup the receipt at the door. a new website also launched where you can basically video talk to ur docs lol

Here in my state, you can, however you must pass urine drug test every 90 days to refill any controlled substances.

Pyro - October 18, 2021, 10:19 pm

i aint from US, and that's not possible here

Juoku - October 19, 2021, 1:12 pm

I'm 100% sure it's possible here, you can even let other people pick up your medicine if you call ahead of time and identify yourself and give them approval for that person

Bluffer - October 19, 2021, 1:13 pm

This is a thing since COVID in Canada. You can talk to a doctor over the phone then get your prescription faxed directly to the pharmacy and go pick it up.

You would probably have to speak to a psychiatrist online first before getting a prescription

Depends if you've never been on it before, etc you might be able to do a video conference or a phone call.

xPower - October 19, 2021, 3:17 pm

Not exactly sure but this would be very efficient if we can do it safely and securely.

shakur123 - October 19, 2021, 3:26 pm

In mexico this is a no go "officially", but you do some bribery and got away with almost anything

Because of Covid, in Sask we have a app where you can video chat a Dr, it's pretty cool

From what I know they need to see you face 2 face.
