Thread: Struggling with Clock Adjustment?

Sigma - November 7, 2021, 4:01 pm

I hate when the clocks change. Hungry at the weirdest times and tired so early.

I woke up this morning and didn't even realize it happened.

On a brighter note, I got a lot more done today and felt more energized ?

It seems like today is dragging by. I don't fuck with this time going back.

srsbznnessmen - November 7, 2021, 4:26 pm

I appreciate the change in sunset/sunrise times. Makes a big difference to me at least.

It feels so late but it's only 6... I'm not mad about them. Tomorrow getting up will be so easy.

Nate - November 7, 2021, 5:14 pm

Naw today I woke up feeling refreshed as fuck

TB12GOAT - November 7, 2021, 5:21 pm

My sleeping schedule is so fucked, i didnt even notice :/

I was working 7pm to 7am and the clock hit 2am and then back to 1 am, was gutted

NurSpec - November 7, 2021, 11:23 pm

The clocks changed in Australia quite a while back now. It only takes me 2 days usually.

Not struggling but last night I smoked up a little bit and peeped the time, it was 1:59AM. Turn my head and focused on something else for what felt like 20 seconds then glanced at the time again and it said 1:00AM, completely lost my mind I had to search up daylight savings end date.

I barely notice it now, I operate the same with 5 hours or 9 hours of sleep so the lack of sleep was fine for me.

Punny - November 8, 2021, 12:10 pm

My area don't do daylight savings time

Thank God they got rid of Daylight savings time here in BC, Canada! I always hated losing an hour. Gaining an hour wasn't so bad.

In?sane? - November 8, 2021, 12:30 pm

Don't notice it since I don't have anything to time.

Just how I like it tho, don't miss waking up at a certain time every morning going somewhere I don't wanna be.
