Yes.

No but seriously, when you see how much BTC is worth in 5, 10, 15, etc., years, you'll wish you had bought some when it was as cheap as $58000. Cryptocurrency will be a part of the future of our world, and that would make BTC, currently the #1 crypto, one of the most likely to be worth a lot when it happens.

Depends...which scenario do you like best?

1. You hold Bitcoin and in 10 years it's really valuable. (guaranteed)
2. You sell, and buy a shitcoin and it becomes worthless. (probable)
3. You sell and make a great investment that moons. (possible)

If you don't need the money immediately or in the immediate future, hold.

If you have access to an exchange where you can quickly trade, then I'd suggest you always hold some stablecoin and trade the price action
