

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: BREAKING: PayPal Has Enabled Bitcoin Payments

xchngd - November 19, 2021, 3:40 pm

BREAKING: PayPal has enabled Bitcoin payments at checkout with millions of stores.

<https://mobile.twitter.com/PayPal/status/1461390349239263233>

Has anybody tried to make a payment yet?

Regulus - November 19, 2021, 3:45 pm

I mean it's pretty cool I guess, but PayPal has screwed me over too many times in the past so I have lost all my trust when it comes to them.

?OMEGA? - November 19, 2021, 3:52 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:45 PM)Regulus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I mean it's pretty cool I guess, but PayPal has screwed me over too many times in the past so I have lost all my trust when it comes to them. I have the first 10 paypal accounts that are limited with money on. Fuck paypal.

Omniscient - November 19, 2021, 3:56 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:52 PM)_OMEGA_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have the first 10 paypal accounts that are limited with money on. fugg paypal.

That makes you a high-risk imho. Why did you keep on making accounts?

As for PP adding Bitcoin payment option. It was always going to happen, only a matter of time. Just like the rest of the world doesn't yet see how Bitcoin will take over everything. The PP is reasonable news because it does open up easier integrations for some people.

I am curious what PP numbers were for transactions these past few years with the rise of crypto payments.

Paypal had no choice but to allow crypto.

I'd say this marks an important moment when these walled-gardens like PP begin to lose their hold.

Regulus - November 19, 2021, 3:57 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:52 PM)_OMEGA_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have the first 10 paypal accounts that are limited with money on. fugg paypal.

Yup, I have PP accounts reaching from $50-$400 on them that are perm limited. ALL with real information from either me, family members and friends.

No fake bullshit.

And they limit you for literally no reason + their support is absolutely shit. So yeah, never using them again.

?OMEGA? - November 19, 2021, 3:58 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:56 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That makes you a high-risk imho. Why did you keep on making accounts?

As for PP adding Bitcoin payment option. It was always going to happen, only a matter of time. Just like the rest of the world doesn't yet see how Bitcoin will take over everything. The PP is reasonable news because it does open up easier integrations for some people.

I am curious what PP numbers were for transactions these past few years with the rise of crypto payments.

Paypal had no choice but to allow crypto.

I'd say this marks an important moment when these walled-gardens like PP begin to lose their hold. They limited me because of my country and i used to do ewhoring and affiliate marketing. So i got huge transfers and then they made a new rule that if you got sent over 2300 euro in a quarter they need to contact the danish tax office and limit the account so you couldnt withdraw or do anything what so ever. Unless you gave them tax information.

? Soufian ? - November 19, 2021, 3:59 pm

Imagine getting charged back on a bitcoin transaction lmao

?OMEGA? - November 19, 2021, 3:59 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:57 PM)Regulus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yup, I have PP accounts reaching from $50-$400 on them that are perm limited.

ALL with real information from either me, family members and friends.

No fake bullshit.

And they limit you for literally no reason + their support is absolutely shit.

So yeah, never using them again.

Exactly the same. Ive got paypal limited in my parents names, my brothers and my sister, my own and my girlfriend.

Lmao they limit it for getting over 2300 euro in a quarter. Which i sometimes made in 1 day.

Regulus - November 19, 2021, 4:01 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:59 PM)_OMEGA_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Exactly the same. Ive got paypal limited in my parents names, my brothers and my sister, my own and my girlfriend.

Lmao they limit it for getting over 2300 euro in a quarter. Which i sometimes made in 1 day.

Yeah trust me, we're not the only ones either.

I have a feeling their support "workers" limits accounts here and there randomly and just keep the money for themselves.

?Nyanbot - November 19, 2021, 4:10 pm

As a non American, can someone please tell me if you can simply buy Crypto with it and pay coinbase commerce invoices with it? Thank you.

Or rather use your paypal balance to send crypto to an external wallet address.

The Host - November 19, 2021, 4:28 pm

Hope this helps us blow past 70k

Omniscient - November 19, 2021, 4:52 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:59 PM)_OMEGA_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Exactly the same. Ive got paypal limited in my parents names, my brothers and my sister, my own and my girlfriend.

Lmao they limit it for getting over 2300 euro in a quarter. Which i sometimes made in 1 day. So you screwed over your family and now they can never get a PP account either. Nice.

?OMEGA? - November 19, 2021, 4:54 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 05:52 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So you screwed over your family and now they can never get a PP account either. Nice.

Not really because they can make a new account with their names again. They just need to use a new email. As long as i didn't give out tax information. It could have been anyone making those accounts back then.

Professional27 - November 19, 2021, 5:18 pm

I would NOT recommend PayPal to anyone. Good to start with if you have no other alternatives but the moment you start receiving steady cash flow, is where things can turn bad real quick. No matter what type of business you are running, business account or not. It's only a matter of time.

Regulus - November 19, 2021, 5:20 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 06:18 PM)Professional27 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would NOT recommend PayPal to anyone. Good to start with if you have no other alternatives but the moment you start receiving steady cash flow, is where things can turn bad real quick. No matter what type of business you are running, business account or not. It's only a matter of time.

I can vouch for this statement, that's for sure.

Thieves..

iNviZ - November 19, 2021, 5:28 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 04:56 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That makes you a high-risk imho. Why did you keep on making accounts?

As for PP adding Bitcoin payment option. It was always going to happen, only a matter of time. Just like the rest of the world doesn't yet see how Bitcoin will take over everything. The PP is reasonable news because it does open up easier integrations for some people.

I am curious what PP numbers were for transactions these past few years with the rise of crypto payments.

Paypal had no choice but to allow crypto.

I'd say this marks an important moment when these walled-gardens like PP begin to lose their hold. I definitely agree, although I still hate PayPal for fugging me up with owing the IRS 60k in 2013 but that's all paid in full now thank god, but the grudge I hold towards PayPal will never go away lol

Kaleb - November 20, 2021, 6:34 am

(Nov 19, 2021 04:56 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That makes you a high-risk imho. Why did you keep on making accounts?

As for PP adding Bitcoin payment option. It was always going to happen, only a matter of time. Just like the rest of the world doesn't yet see how Bitcoin will take over everything. The PP is reasonable news because it does open up easier integrations for some people.

I am curious what PP numbers were for transactions these past few years with the rise of crypto payments.

Paypal had no choice but to allow crypto.

I'd say this marks an important moment when these walled-gardens like PP begin to lose their hold. Yeah it's funny to see them finally concede because if my memory serves me right PayPal used to block or limit transactions related to crypto years ago. Something as big as PP which if anything must've seen crypto as a threat or competition bending the knee is funny.

Porn - November 20, 2021, 6:47 am

(Nov 19, 2021 04:59 PM)? Soufian ? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Imagine getting charged back on a bitcoin transaction lmao

It says that the cryptocurrency is converted to fiat, so basically in order to pay with crypto on paypal you must have verified your identity and purchased crypto, when your ready to make it purchase it will convert it back to fiat USD and then you are free to chargeback anytime you want lol

?OMEGA? - November 20, 2021, 8:44 am

(Nov 19, 2021 06:18 PM)Professional27 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would NOT recommend PayPal to anyone. Good to start with if you have no other alternatives but the moment you start receiving steady cash flow, is where things can turn bad real quick. No matter what type of business you are running, business account or not. It's only a matter of time.

Im all in for this post aswell.

ThatDevAaron - November 20, 2021, 8:55 am just stop using paypal, if you've used them and had a bad experience, blame yourself for trusting them, don't blame them for scamming on you.

Cooldudex - November 20, 2021, 12:34 pm

Imagine actually HOLDING YOUR CRYPTO on that dog shit platform

Omniscient - November 20, 2021, 1:36 pm

(Nov 19, 2021 05:54 PM)_OMEGA_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not really because they can make a new account with their names again. They just need to use a new email. As long as i didn't give out tax information. It could have been anyone making those accounts back then.

You're naive. And if that's so true why didn't you just make up names and addresses for these accounts? Scumbag move to involve your family in your BS. You're a low-life PoS.

?OMEGA? - November 20, 2021, 2:34 pm

(Nov 20, 2021 02:36 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're naive. And if that's so true why didn't you just make up names and addresses for these accounts? Scumbag move to involve your family in your BS. You're a low-life PoS.

Because for some reason if i tried with fake information the accounts got limited way way faster than the 2300 Euro/Q rule.

And yes they can make new accounts its as long as its with new email and another credit card attached which was never theirs anyway. You can see how many else in this thread had to do the same thing. Back then paypal was really scummy to work with. And i've lost thousands of hard earned money because of them. Unless i wanted to pay my taxes which i didn't want at that point in life. We are talking 6-7 years ago mate. I don't know why you are attacking me. Half of this thread is people who have been through the same stuff with paypal as me.

SUI-3183372 - November 20, 2021, 2:47 pm

Can't send crypto. Can't withdraw crypto. Can't do anything with it but see that PayPal says you have some. It's not your crypto, I'd never buy crypto with PayPal. Thanks for helping put Bitcoin's name on the map, but buyer beware x100 in this situation.

Burnurr - November 21, 2021, 9:33 am

And now they do this... I'm done with Paypal, I'll never see this.

Omniscient - November 21, 2021, 9:42 am

(Nov 20, 2021 03:47 PM)BV1 Wrote: CITE Can't send crypto. Can't withdraw crypto. Can't do anything with it but see that PayPal says you have some. It's not your crypto, I'd never buy crypto with PayPal. Thanks for helping put Bitcoin's name on the map, but buyer beware x100 in this situation.

But maybe you can get grandma to buy some Bitcoin in her Paypal account.

Realistically all my kids who are under 25 but over 18, none of them use Paypal. They all use CashApp.

Paypal is losing relevance but they still have a large audience. IMHO if they don't switch to crypto 100% really fast, they will lose everything.

shreder - November 21, 2021, 11:26 am

Paypal has stayed relevant with venmo and crypto