This happened

At https://www.xt.com/tradePro/ijz_usdt

Does this mean people had some tokens and placed limit sell orders before the token was listed on the exchange? please elaborate crypto enthuaists.

This is nothing weird or odd. As an investor, you sometimes come across the opportunity to purchase coins or tokens before they are placed on an exchange platform. These pre-public sales are also sometimes called ICO's:

Sometimes, an exchange gets offered a specific amount of coins or tokens to have them be placed on said exchange platform. So again, there are various ways in which one can acquire currency before the currency can be traded on a specific currency exchange platform.

The creators could have made a deal with the exchange platform. The creators could have made a deal with a marketing agency to 'stabilize' prices or 'distribute' coins 'equally' which is never a great sign when it comes to trust.
