So according to their growth charts listed below, their monthly active users has been roughly 4 million per month in growth.

This means we should hopefully see 50 million active monthly users and 15 million active monthly users within the month of December.

Personally I'm disappointed as a Brave user that BAT isn't pushed more as a crypto within the wallet. Maybe they need partnerships or more solid marketing. But it is a good project and maybe over time it's going to create the necessary usage for BAT.

I think the slow steady development in the long run is going to be beneficial for the coin overall. While it would be nice to see a massive push quicker - we will be seeing lower fees for trading soon which will make it more accessible.
