I have to unwillingly say that I agree, no one knows what tomorrow will bring That's always a possibility. However walking around with an umbrella during a sunny, cloudless day seems to be a waste of energy. As does entertaining the idea of death as it's inevitably the outcome for us all.

I suppose, however I'm fairly cynical (where it counts) but god willing, and health of course hopefully, I'll be in Egypt I wanna see inside the pyramids, possibly the sphinx, Possibly Germany. In the mean time I'm working on my and my teams portable fortunes.

wanted to see the Pyramids as well and Germany sounds like an interesting spot to visit. Ever thought of seeing the coliseum ?

I hear the colosseum is cool af. I also want to see the bone cathedral that holds secrets I'm willing to bet. But I want to see Cape Verde too, Japan.

I don't know where I expect to be in 5 years time - I'll be an age at which my mother was already dead, so I might not even still be around.

I know where I'd like to be in 5 years, but, we'll have to wait and see.
