Thread: Make your New Year's resolution to NOT have any offsite screenshots

webdev77 - January 2, 2022, 10:07 am

So many HF members continue to post screenshots of off site activities. You are warned to deal ONLY on site, if at all, knowing you could still get scammed even on site.

Please take it upon yourselves to NOT post any screenshots of discord, telegram, or any other offsite service. It is quite frankly a waste of everybody's time to even bother looking at when you completely disregard all instructions of how to avoid possible scams. There is zero ability to verify authenticity of off site communication and it will be ignored.

TL,DR; Post an off site screenshot and get a free link to this page and the Help Docs.

The linked wiki is too long, I didn't read it.

Do you know what...

We've been saying this here for years. You would think at this point that it would go without saying that dealing off-site is your own risk and a risk you shouldn't take.

Even if you have the person verify their identity via PM by sending you a specific message or whatever, it still doesn't "protect" you.

Both the contracts and trust scan systems were implemented for a reason. Yes, you can still be scammed on-site with a contract in place, after reviewing a trust scan; but at least you will be able to make a valid deal dispute and publicly shame the scammer with credibility.

Some people may see your post as rude and ignorant @Xerotic, but you're speaking with common sense and we can only hope and pray that other members will embrace this sense too.

If you deal off-site, it's your own problem and there's nothing anyone here can do for you. You knew the risks and you took them.

Just my two cents. All the best.

Kind regards,
Zulu.
