What's wrong Buddy?. Remember its Life, and it goes on. Situations are rarely Permanent, they change for the Better or the Worse.

bevc - January 3, 2022, 8:13 am

You need to make your own purpose, I'm afraid.

You are meant to be alive, because you are. Talk it out, my friend.

What would your grandma tell you to do? Have you talked to her about how you're feeling?

If your girlfriend cheated on you, you are lucky to be rid of her. You can find a job, it just takes time.

You can always find a new girlfriend, when you are ready for that of course.. start filling out applications because no one else will but you and I've learned that the hard way. If you can draw, clean cars, whatever it is that you're good at, try to make money doing it! Spend as much time with your grandma and sit down with your family and explain to them that you're in a dark spot in life and life is very short to be arguing..

Spend as much time with your grandma as you can while you look for a job. Sorry but the other two seem to be out of your control, just live and let live. My ex was toxic so I feel you there. Cheer up man, someone always has it worse.

Man ... it's your fault that you have no purpose in life. Plus, just because you can't see a target doesn't mean it doesn't exist. You have to set goals yourself and then strive to achieve them. I'll give you one piece of good advice. Instead of wondering and crying that life is meaningless, make it meaningless at last. Learn, search and develop your passions and exceed your own limits. You'll see, thank you sometime...

Now hold on, keep your head up and forward??

shitmaster - January 3, 2022, 8:50 am

Find your purpose. Try doing some charity stuff. Or walking by the beach picking up rubbish. I was depressed and felt like there was no point living. Those were among the things I tried. It helped. It may not work immediately. But it'll eventually help.

OP you need IRL help with professionals. Don't stay alone at home with your thoughts.

Everything you just said would be completely pointless, pretty much a non-post for somebody who struggles with clinical depression.

I am not sure that he does but saying "do something about it" in just more words is saying absolutely nothing.

To OP:

You need to find something that makes you want to live. Right now you live in the void, you live in the state between where you don't want to live nor die. You want to exist but your existence is filled with misery and pain. You need to find something that gives you purpose. If you don't you are shit out of luck and will either keep living in pain or end it. There is no sugar coating but that is basically how it is. And when I say you have to find it then I mean it. There are no goals to set, no peaks to achieve, you need luck on your side.

I have been diagnosed with severe ADHD and depression and have lived with depression since a very young age. I have not accomplished anything in life, mainly because I believe there is no point accomplishing anything if you can just die the next day. A doctor or just a person next to me might decide that I shouldn't live anymore. My heart out of nowhere could decide that it's not my time to live anymore. I do my job, come home and smoke weed to feel better every day.

I have found what makes my life worth living, I have found the source of my happiness. The only problem is that it is not in the cards for me right now so I can keep on living in pain every day. Smoking weed helps me a lot, the feeling of high cannabis gives me makes me numb to this mental torture for a period of time.

I'm not OP but I appreciate you for taking your time and explaining a lot tbh.. I started smoking weed in April, it honestly helps me strive for more, eat healthier, spend more time with my family, just everything is better because of weed while I'm fighting my demons. If you or anybody ever needs somebody to chop it up with, hit me up!

1. Move on from your whore and get another one
2. Don't need a job, just find a way to make money
3. That's life, just enjoy what you have left with grandma
4. Families suck, all you need are good friends

Meditate, eat right, get some sun. Be the alpha you are meant to be.

You know ... you are just talking to someone who has been struggling with depression since childhood. For years I felt sorry for myself, cried, took high drugs, drank and ruined my life. And so it went by and I finally realized, "What are you actually doing man." Life is like a coin, it always has two sides, and YOU choose the side of it. I know it is hard to see through the disease which is depression and I do not deny that the person suffering from it is hard with himself. However, no one will tell me that it cannot be overcome ... You just have to stop feeling sorry and start acting. And yes, I know, it's easy to say, it's harder to do ... However, I made it, so others can do it too. I am in no way better than the others. It is only willpower because, as I said before, each of us chooses the side of the coin called life...

And now I'd love to hear what you want to tell me about it, buddy?

You have a purpose. Please talk to someone about it, and those thoughts are not normal. Everyone has a place in this world.
