Thread: [\[Confession\] I've contacted journalists to feed them false information](#)

Handsome - February 3, 2022, 2:38 pm

I hate journalists. I think they're the scum of the earth and add zero value to society as a whole. They contribute to division, they contribute to fear, they're liars, they're swine, they put sensationalism over facts, and that is why, I prowl twitter and whenever one of these people report on some sort of local hate crime or whatever, I'll email them from an email unrelated to me and on a VPN, and I'll give them some bullshit story about how I am somehow involved in whatever they're reporting on. I'll make up names, I'll make up events, etc. I do this because if they choose to report it, and use my false information, when that info is found out to be false it destroys what credibility they have left as yellow journalists.

I've probably done this to 2 or 3 journalists so far.

It's probably the most diabolical thing I've done in recent years. I've also thought about using a certain website that connects journos with sources and doing it to them there too.

I can't stand them.

This made me laugh but it's evil dude. Let them do their job. It puts food on their table.

Instead of false reporting, help them with right info (if you can). Destroying reputation of someone for personal satisfaction is not good.

SIM-2502833 - February 3, 2022, 2:48 pm

If you think that journalists earn their merit by posting the truth, you're completely wrong.

It has nothing to do with whether or not what they say is true. It has to do with viewer engagement. Even if its completely 100% false, you're just endorsing their current justification for lying, which is 'WELL WE DIDNT KNOW ANY BETTER!!!'

If they can't fact check that Sam Hyde didn't commit a school shooting and they report that, and people see they're reporting fake news, it doesn't matter if they say they didn't know better. Their job is literally to fact check before reporting.

The media has doxed people before. There's no way I'm letting them off because it's just their job.

Obviously they could care less who believes them or not as long as they can stir up an initial reaction.

Eran - February 3, 2022, 3:04 pm

This is evil but I can't blame you, journalists disgust me as well. I'd work anything else rather than contributing to division, fear, hatred.

And to clarify, it's not like I do this to journos who are trying to write feel good stories about puppies or something. These guys are contributors to what makes the world so shitty.

Well it's sorta their fault for not fact checking or confirming who you are

A lot of them only care about user interaction and views, not about writing truthful articles.

Not yet. In one, the person who did what they were writing about was caught before I could answer any follow up questions. The other, the person thanked me for my info and I never followed up on the story.

DumbChicken - February 4, 2022, 12:44 pm

Journalists may contribute to spreading information across the world, if you "help" them the wrong way, you sort of become a journalist yourself then, if I accord to your view of what they are.

Rudyard Kipling wrote a great poem called the "The Beginnings," you might have heard of it by the name "The Wrath of the Awakened Saxon."

Quote:It was not part of their blood,
It came to them very late,
With long arrears to make good,
When the Saxon began to hate.

They were not easily moved,
They were icy -- willing to wait
Till every count should be proved,
Ere the Saxon began to hate.

Their voices were even and low.
Their eyes were level and straight.
There was neither sign nor show
When the Saxon began to hate.

It was not preached to the crowd.
It was not taught by the state.
No man spoke it aloud
When the Saxon began to hate.

It was not suddenly bred.
It will not swiftly abate.
Through the chilled years ahead,
When Time shall count from the date
That the Saxon began to hate

The point being, by providing misinformation to the media and then pointing it out when they use it, you help speed up the breeding of hate for the MSM in the average person.

Yes but why ? wouldn't it be better to make them do actually good content ? They are still humans, and I know a bunch of them, even if they aren't the toxic ones, I still believe it is similar.

People are convinced by journalists, journalists can be convinced by people, I suppose.

Mr. Robot - February 4, 2022, 3:49 pm

Most journalists start off with good intentions - not all however and with time comes the sense of sensationalism.

The issue is the way money is made - money is made from advertisers - Then the top dogs think they are the voices of the nation and get paid way more than they deserve, meaning less money for their lesser counterparts.

What needs to happen is salary caps from these media organizations and remove payrises and promotions from how many views your article gets.

A system more based on good/bad rating percentage rather than just views. It allows advertisers money to go further and journalists to focus more on good reporting rather than what gets the eyes.

DumbChicken - February 4, 2022, 4:23 pm

Oh and a large part of journalists are also reporters, they go get the information directly on-site, it may not work like that on all the fields, but then the information may be more reliable.

Endorphins - March 2, 2022, 7:11 am

Journalist is a profession and doing something like this will affect other people who also got the same profession.

I agree that most of them were only into views, impressions, clicks, or whatever metrics to generate more money, but not all of them were the same (hopefully). I still have some hope.

Oh, instead of feeding them some misinformation, why don't you counter their misinformation. Create a platform where you do some research and fact-check their article? That would be interesting.

So you're just wasting your own time then? By god, what kind of thread is this? You're bragging about wasting everyone's time? Actually, you don't have anything to brag about because you just proved your own points that they should fact-check which they clearly did but you're still proud over the fact that you're disproving your own point??

By god, all you do in this world is waste everyone's time, including mine. If anything, that's the one thing you will be remembered for: Not worthy of anyone's time or attention.

All I see from you here in recent times is:'I did something but I actually didn't do anything, feed me attention'.

Have you invented something that helps improve the lives of others? Have you ever made someone happy? Have you ever tried to make someone happy? Seriously, I could probably write an AI that completely replaces you on this forum by going over your history and nobody would notice and I don't think that's something you should be proud of, sir. But you do you. Whatever. I'm out, I have things to do. Don't expect any replies if you quote me (because you're really not worth my time as it is). This is the lounge after all..

This kind of proves the point that modern journalism is just spewing random nonsense for clicks. If they don't verify the authenticity of claims, that's on them.

It actually proves that they do verify and check claims because none of OP's tips actually went through, as he stated earlier. OP just likes to make threads to waste everyone's time thinking he has something useful to say.

Well, definitely get some points on the dark side of things and while I laugh and to a degree somewhat, I feel that this is also a good example of fuckery gone wild. Especially hindering investigations relating to "hate crime, Rape, and the wonderfully immoral shit that goes with the scum who act on it is ignorant. Misinformation, big or small is the foundation of utter fuckery. Unless you're a politician I guess, idk...

I have 0 sympathy for these scum, anyone defending them clearly don't know the lies and bullshit they spread. Good journalists are very rare, they will typically be part of independent media outlets rather than Zionist owned mainstream media
