I'm debating whether I should sell these at this point. I'm down the most with these 2. Currently -66% & -60%.

I want to sell and move those funds over to BTC.

Do you guys expect any of these to go up again any time soon? I really don't want to miss out. I don't expect to jump back into profits, but anything close to breaking even is fine for me.

I bought XRP @ $1.71 average

VET @ 0.19 average

Depends how much you can hold your money locked. Vechain is a solid long term investment. But as all crypto it just follows bitcoin and bitcoin is heavily manipulated.

Thursday CPI numbers come in and could spell trouble for the USD. If not March should definitely crash the economy a little bit unless powell decides not to sell even then (which would be insane but can't see the future).

So far everything looks bearish. Problem is vechain and XRP lost attention after the shitcoin wave then NFT. For a 5-10 years hold it's a good hold though.

XRP on the other hand it's kinda deep in shit with the SEC case. XRP is a huge gamble so far that can be very rewarding in the next 5 years but a huge risk nonetheless.

I would say to hold because next bull run everything will pump anyway vechain and xrp included as they are too popular not to. But don't expect x100 from those entries.

If you need the money and you are not in for a 3-5 years hold you should sell before march, at least 50% even if it's at a loss so you get some money out (only if needed that's not something that I would do). And if by some miracle bitcoin will be a "hedge against inflation" as the chances for that to happen are super low, you could get a fortune.

In my opinion I would just hold (because I am fine with money, still accumulating), I know I can leave all my investments into crypto there for at least the next 10 years.

I also hold 50% of my portfolio in vechain, bought from 0.06 until 0.26 and I am still holding because vechain is a clearly solid long term hold.

Not so sure about XRP though, if they can deal with the SEC and come with something innovative they could do fine but it's a huge gamble at this point.

TLDR: XRP and Vechain lost momentum weak chances to go near your entries again. Holding until next bull run is advised.

I agree with this although I wouldn't blame you if you swap it to BTC either. It's BTC after all.

What he said.

I still believe it could go high after (and if) they win the case.

I feel like this case has been dragging for so long.

Today's pump is because there is good news on the case and i heard it reached a crucial point so maybe its good to hold right now

XRP just went up 20%, as others have said myself included it's a high risk because it's all about the SEC case. But as an investor patience is rewarded. You clearly ran out of patience and that's just not something an investor does. You will get fucked if you can't hold your horses when there is blood on the streets.

Wait on XRP like others have said. Good changes it will hit the $0.90 mark very soon. And after The SEC loses in Court i think we will be seeing $2 mark soon. I know it been dragging along time already but i really think the outcome will be this year.
