It was pretty good. I didn't think it was amazing but I did like it.

What's your take?

btw, my fav halftime was this one:

Not a Coldplay fan but when Beyonce came out, that shit was lit!

Yuno - February 14, 2022, 10:49 am

I was a fan of the halftime show this year. Think M&M could have gotten another song in, but no complaints from me. Very enjoyable.

Eran - February 14, 2022, 10:51 am

Eminem should have performed more in my opinion, but it was still pretty dope

Palestine - February 14, 2022, 10:59 am i enjoyed it as well, it was a nice walk down memory lane tbh especially with tupac playing, one of my all time favorite artists! 50 cent looked like he had gained a ton of weight lol

I agree with the 50 cent statment. Who knows how he was able to hang upside down so long lol

The only thing we keep hearing about in the UK is how Eminem took a knee when he was advised not to. It's been on the radio all day today.

Have any information as to why?

I didn't think anything of it. If they didn't tell me it has significance, I wouldn't have thought it did. Still not sure it did. Did Eminem make a statement on it?

I think idiots want to make it controversial over nothing. "look look, he's on his knee, must be BLM". What, no one can go on their knees ever again without it being protest? That's bullshit. I took it more as a bow to Dre and the fans.

It's like how the "OK" hand gesture is now a white supremacist thing.

<https://www.adl.org/education/references/hate-symbols/okay-hand-gesture>

A hand gesture I been using my whole life is now ruined. If I want to tell you I hate you, I'll give you a different hand gesture.

I think idiots want to make it controversial over nothing. "look look, he's on his knee, must be BLM". No our news outlets here in the UK have just been reporting on it calling it controversial all day, because he was advised not to do it.

Even though as you say all that happened is one guy bent down on one knee.

I guess because the super has next to no coverage in the UK the only story they did cover was one which will cause divide of opinion.

Edit: exactly the world has become far too focused on political correctness, it's almost become a pandemic.

Media for ya

Spore - February 14, 2022, 11:13 am

People making bullshit politics out of nothing. I've read that he knelt to honor Tupac. But who knows, and why should anyone be giving a fuck, especially if he didn't say why?

Maskin - February 14, 2022, 12:06 pm

I think you have to be a fan of 90s and early 00s hip-hop to appreciate this show fully. For me I got goose bumps and thought it was amazing.

I sort of freak out when I realize some of my favorite music is now 30 years old. Seems really bizarre to me because it just doesn't feel like that long ago.

Truth - February 14, 2022, 12:19 pm

Yeah it was pretty good, my fav half-time shows are Prince and Bruno Mars.

If you want to laugh, look what this person said about the halftime show. Some people are just way too political.

I enjoyed the half-time show it was fun to see all these legends come together and perform, not sure what the NFL was thinking telling them not to do certain things its like telling a dead person to come back alive, they do what they want. I also enjoyed some of the memes online about 50 Cent and people calling him fatty cent and people telling Mary J to get here inhaler.

N - February 14, 2022, 12:48 pm

Hands down top 3 best half time Super Bowl performances of all time.

If you grew up in the 90s and like the rap / hip hop genre, then that was the greatest Super Bowl half time performance you've seen.

It was lit.

Omniscient - February 14, 2022, 1:00 pm

Charlie Kirk makes his living being political and controversial. He's like a shock-jock. Says shit to get engagements. The guy is a meme of himself.

Quote: not sure what the NFL was thinking telling them not to do certain things

Did the NFL actually confirm this or is it just a rumor?

Pretty sure they did tell them not to do certain things I would have to find the links and there was a even a video of snoop smoking like 2 mins before the performance and apparently they did not want him to smoke.

I'm sure there is something in their contract too ever since Janet Jackson showed her boob during the half-time performance. Just not sure the whole "knee" thing is in it or that what he did was any sort of symbolism.

I agree, we wont know until someone comes out and says something but telling people like Eminem, Snoop and Dr.Dre not to do something is like talking to a dead person, regardless of what certain things meant and if they did have any meaning, I think that was an fantastic half time show.

Just seen some people are saying that the knee was a tribute to 2Pac but we wont know until someone speaks and confirms this.

Vitani's Mate - February 14, 2022, 1:12 pm

I don't think we get NFL (broadcast) here in Australia, the closest we got is NRL.

No Bra - February 14, 2022, 1:14 pm

Why would the NFL have a problem with what he did? It hasn't done anything to prevent the players from taking a knee. I watched it live and I didn't get the impression he was protesting anything.

EXACTLY. He ended his performance, went to his knee while Dre played the piano. I saw nothing at all remotely political about it until the next day I saw Left-tards saying that he did it for BLM support. Or maybe it's Right-Tards that are saying it. Or basically any retard that wants to claim it.

Bluffer - February 14, 2022, 1:32 pm

Eminem's newer music has talked about Black Lives Matter and the deaths of black people so it was definitely a political thing.

Read this BEFORE the show.

I think it's political in nature but don't expect him to say anything he's a quiet guy, he'll talk about it in his next album.

Pikzul - February 14, 2022, 1:36 pm

It was awesome finally something decent
