

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Never Blame the US

Kr0n0s - February 22, 2022, 5:20 am

<https://securityaffairs.co/>

I was taking a look at this, in the "APT" category.

It's not the first time I browse such news sites to remain updated on the current situation but I've noticed a very very common pattern:

There is not a single US APT mentioned.

Not a UK one,

not a french one,

you get it

only the "bad" countries.

whats your thought on this? I think it's bullshit and it makes me mad, it's impossible no European or USA/Five Eyes APT are carrying attacks.

Kr0n0s - February 22, 2022, 5:48 am

(Feb 22, 2022 06:41 AM)Dyne Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You are correct, media output depends on the input.

I dont think there arent any acting groups, but i doubt intelligence in the "good" countries would want that publicly known.

Police and ISP monitoring are very strong in these countries, why post news outlet stories when they can just go get them and keep it hush?

It shall not be so easy to "go get them", impartiality and right to opinion should be what distinguish us from the "animals"

but the more time goes, the more I think there is nothing that distinguish "us" as "good" countries from the "bad" ones, after of course what happened to wikileaks.

what are we truly defending and going to war for if the prime example would be right to opinion and clearly it's become more and more visible that right is just a fake r3byte - February 22, 2022, 7:20 am

Yeah true, majority of reports for such seem to be surrounding theses areas.

Especially the ISP overlooks