Thread: I left a very good job and I feel bad about it

QuestionAsker95 - March 8, 2022, 1:03 am

My parents were nagging me to get a job so i got one.
Somehow I landed a good job, call it luck
Worked a little over a year

But my frustrations from all areas of life were accumulating and one day i just said fuck it and left
And the fact that my life is.. well its just bad and unrewarding
It effectively killed any motivation for work I had

Most people I know work because they live on their own or with partner, or theyre collecting money to buy apartment instead of renting it, or they want to invest in something
But I dont currently have such ambitions or conditions, so I felt no drive to work. And when I finished work I just rotted on internet anyway or played games I dont like

Theoretically i could still ask managers to let me stay but I would lose face for changing my mind like a little girl and once u lose face in job things will never be the same
That said i would probably leave the job anyway, although it would be better to work for 5 months more as I need a little bit more money

I kinda feel like I lost a lot you know? But I just couldnt stand it when I informed managers about my decision also my parents are dissapointed, sad(very) and rude about it, understandable i guess

You will not lose face if you changed your mind. If you can work there longer then why not? You don't need the money now, but you can keep saving it for the future.

Damn man, should have tried to find something else first and have another job lined up. They are just worried though because real life doesn't work like that. When you have bills to pay you can't just quit work because you're fed up one day.

Wish you the best man. Good luck.

I wish I had something like this to grasp onto. Everything seems to be falling apart. I'm keeping my head up though.

Just remember that you'll make it. I remember I felt the same, I used to sleep 18 hours a day being depressed doing nothing but by God's grace things are improving just keep fighting.

You bro I'm hungry and I ran out of Uber eats. And yes bro everyday is a battle. Just lost two of my closest to drug addiction so it's been rough getting up some days. I pray the word gets better.

I don't need anything done atm and tbh I don't have any btc on me atm but since you have cash app. Check my DM.

And I left a job too, it was not good but it was my first job. I was working 9 hours every night almost 45 hours/week. It was night shift without any night shift allowance and they were paying 210$/month. It's so less but enough to survive for one person in my country. My parents are unhappy too but I can't do it as I suffer from Schizophrenia and take meds. I need to sleep at night so my mind can relax. Life is so tough at times.
