Thread: [OnePiece Chapter 1044 - Discussion \[SPOILERS\]](#)

Zero - March 28, 2022, 12:51 pm

I was wondering if anyone here is following the OnePiece manga.

I don't think I've ever been this excited reading OnePiece. Maybe I got tired over the years.

Luffy has a god devil fruit. He basically came back to life with an insane power. We learn a lot about Luffy's fruit from the world government and we witnessed it's power. It makes me think, are we close to the end? What's going to happen from here? Will the Navy and Blackbeard become so strong that they will actually match Luffy's god power?

I'm full of questions and excitement and just wanted to share it with someone.

I've came across a video that is going over everything and trying to explain the overshadowing of all the details:

I felt like a 10 yr old kid again when I saw the gear 5 intro.

Oda made it worth the wait.

Fcking goosebumps every damn time I read it. ???

Yes I am. Looks like 1046/1047 are about to be the ending chapters for the Wano ark.

The cartoonish fight scenes seem to add to the humor of the manga but the "revival at will" is ruining the suspense for me. Does this imply that in future fights, Luffy will never lose again and will just command his heart to do that restart like thingy?

This entire thing is like Goku's Ultra Instinct awakening. He revived himself over and over again.

I don't think it's something he'll be able to do and I do believe this fight means he'll be half dead when it's over. They did mention his devil fruit power is limitless.

I wonder how the Navy will match him now and other pirates too. Also excited to see Law develops as he's meant to be almost as special as Luffy.

It feels like we're close to the end but man there are SO many secrets we're not even close to knowing. Is Shanks that strong?

There are at least three arcs before the end. One where Luffy fights the world government, the Elbaf arc and the final arc where everyone who isn't dead fights Blackbeard and then off to Laugh Tale. I don't have a working theory on Shanks yet but I think he is kind of like a team player, as in, his success is more reliant on the team than his own personal strength. His crew is known as the strongest crew after all.

Would you believe me if I said that I predicted the bit about "Luffy's strength being only limited by his imagination" around five years ago? ?

Hahaha yea I'll believe you.

Yes I know we're not done yet, I just mean it gives ending vibes. Luffy is a god, what's there left? lol From here on he'll just get even stronger.

I guess that he won't know how to control this power or even enable it again so we'll have some time of him struggling unable to reach that power again.

Even though the arcs/fights are pretty obvious still many secrets left for us to unveil and it gets me excited!

Pretty sure the heart thing does some permanent damage on him so i dont think he can spam it even kaidou said if you keep going like this you will die and luffy said he dont care

You really think so ? But how tho i feel like luffy is still not strong enough to beat kaidou

The Gorosei stated that Luffy's power is only limited by his imagination so that should imply that as soon as Luffy thinks deep down that he can beat kaido, he will be able to do it.

Not the entire arc but the deciding moment. Yes I feel like it'll happen in about 2 more chapters. Just a feeling tho.
