builtiff - April 2, 2022, 9:55 am

Theres an obivious scam on the "free services and giveaway" section, im talking about this thread

[deleted]

The method is u go to a website and invest crypto there, but the website looks like your usual "crypto website investment scam", they even have "copyright: 2021" in the "footer" (they dont even have a footer) and so on...

How can i usually contact staff when i see scams like this?

funtela - April 2, 2022, 10:08 am

Is it actually a scam or does it just "look" like a scam website?

This guy is honestly a laughing stock- been on the forum for a month and posts trash everywhere. I have seen better looking websites with more information, absolutely.

OP I am happy to send you withdrawals from the past 4 weeks +

Would that scratch your itch?

It "looks" like a scam, im not gonna get scammed to prove it.

I searched it on google and i think im right.

My question was how do i contact a staff member so he can decide if its a scam or not, because i really think it is

You think you're right but the title of this thread is 'obvious scam'.

I do not know where you get off, but I myself use the service and it's working like a charm. Withdrawals included. I feel like you should do actual proper research instead of judging a book by it's cover, but that might be me.

Do not get me wrong, I understand you're cautious, but I feel that there's no need. If <you> want to miss out on the service, that's on <you>, but there's no need to thread-bash without solid foundations on your claims.

That IMGUR link you have just provided isn't even a link to the website? You're killing me here lol. At no point In my FREE giveaway which I have provided to hundreds of users do I make reference to .net?

This has been vouched for by reputable members with proven withdrawals but you're getting caught up on some grammar?

Give it a rest.

Is he scamming tho? He will probably give you what you've bought, a method, just don't expect to make dumb money with it - or anything at all.

That's how it goes. Staff cannot and will not do anything about it.
Here's the kicker. This is a free service. There's not a single payment involved to get all the information and automation needed.

bro this is a referral scam website promoted on the "free services and giveaways", its most likely his website, ofc staff should close that fucking thread and his account wtf

Just don't use it if you're skeptical.

Exactly. Not only that, he's also supplying screenshots of the wrong domain. There's no mention of a .net domain yet the screenshots come from there. Kind of a joke if you ask me.
