Was dwelling back into GFX, would love to hear some feedback.

What would you change on this thread design?

First thing i see is misaligned boxes.

I don't think there are enough elements on design for a proper feedback.

It contains of title, two misaligned boxes and some random text below.

Clear, concise, and easy to digest.

Fuck, now I see it too.

Lack of elements is what I was aiming for. Something basic and minimalistic. But I do agree that it might be a little too empty for some people.

Appreciate the feedback.

I recommend using Adobe XD or Figma for making thread designs!

Your design will stand out more. And small things like alignment of elements are very easy to manage with those programs.

White space (empty space) isn't bad, especially if you're going for a minimalistic design.

I'm gonna be honest with you brother, my first impressions were just basic boxes in the middle with a basic background design, and i didn't really like that feeling...

I know you're going for simplicity but this feels over simplified in my opinion. Some of the font feels too stretched as well.. good color choices though, definitely catches attention.
