yo

I used to lurk on here on an old account around a year ago but never really did anything with it. however, i have plenty of free time now so i figured that i might as well participate in discussion on HF for once and maybe put something out there. i have a couple of years experience in python under my belt and i've made discord loggers that recorded keystrokes and obtained user tokens among other things. I'm most interested in developing rats and making scripts (both paid and free) for people to use, so any pointers as to how to go about working with people on something or just general advice as to how to market my skills on HF would be appreciated.

hope to see you guys around more ^_^ most likely will be active daily Awesome quality intro you got there, props. What happened to your old account if I may ask?

Welcome back!
