thanks im looking at now. you have other coins that's potential to pump for next 2-3 months?

ADAX is on a downward slide to 6-7% of it's ATH value. There isn't a single thing about it that would indicate it has any value, long term or short term.

You are stupid.

You will lose your money.

don't think you will get that much gains in next 2 3 months, crypto market is boring at the moment

- too much ongoing fud
- testnet of dex released by end of the month
- extremely oversold

if the product they release works out, very quick adoption is expected

Short term you'll probably never have a chance at making profit especially in one single project.

Have you ever used the ADAX platform? It's hot garbage.

I got into ADAX early because I was heavily invested in the Cardano ecosystem and it's probably one of the more disappointing investments I made. They did a good job pumping us up for the platform, and thus pumping ADAX's price. However, the platform continues to come out, and we're starting to see that pretty much all aspects of it suck, and in turn, so does the price. They're competing with platforms that people are happy with, ADAX's DEX isn't going to see the liquidity or volume it needs to be successful.

Day trading crypto is also great because it offers short-term opportunities. Rather than buying, holding or taking long positions, you can day trade and profit from the market in such a short period
