Do you guys think its worth selling private crypts? I made a crypter and Its fud scantime and runtime on WD and kaspersky with quasar (tested on live system with internet on) and antiscan has 1/26

It can load 32bit and 64bit native and .net

How much do you guys think I could ask?

This is a service that is highly looked for, rarely found, mostly because if the bulkshit like the other guy said! But again like he said if you can deal with that then ya its worth it, if you got a hq product, but then ya people will mass use it also, put it on public scans to test and give your code to all av, so in the long run, the best option which isn't really an option, is to do private sells but not on a open forum, find a better quality group or few quality people to provide your service to
