Im considering putting in a good investment and it seems as if this is the perfect time. But how low will we go on crypto is the question.

If btc is down = everything is down

How much are you thinking about putting in?

Omniscient - April 13, 2022, 8:56 am

LTC is a huge buy imho. I created a thread about it not so long ago.

I believe the valuation for LTC should be much, much higher. And, at an alltime low, I believe it will go much higher in the coming months considering its active functionality, project development and easy user accessibility.

You have darknet markets to thank for that!

I have a small bag of LTC.

Low fees, quick transactions, what's not to like?

Bullup - April 17, 2022, 6:53 pm

LTC has been floor level for a long time in my opinion, very undervalued and i don't understand why since most people use LTC for day to day transactions, it is very cheap, and fast as well.

It is also by far the most used crypto that people use to buy my products and subs throughout all my projects, PP is still beating crypto in general though, paypal sales are about 40% more, at least for my projects that is, in the projects where i accept paypal.

Is LTC beating other cryptos on this platform as well in terms of cryptos used to buy marketing services on HF?

(Mar 2, 2022 01:44 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Current pricing of LTC is $110. ATH was $410 in May 2021 (10 months ago).

Basically LTC continues to maintain a good market position as a usable crypto due to fast transaction speeds and nearly zero fees.

Looking at comparative pricing levels against Bitcoin you can see that it's just 25% of the ATH whereas BTC is 60% of theirs. That means if both cryptos reach new ATH's in the coming months or next year that Litecoin will be the better investment return.

I continue to see strong usage of Litecoin with HF members. It's easily the 2nd most popular payment crypto. Almost no one uses Ethereum. Bitcoin fees continue to be questionable. We could be two years away still from ETH 2.0 (fixing their fee problem).

Just saying to you that if you want to grab some LTC at $110 a pop this is a reasonable moment. I'm going to price target $220+ by EOY. That's a 100% return. Will Bitcoin go to $84k by then to match that return? We shall see.

Litecoin may not be a sexy investment due to age and lack of development excitement but Litecoin has a strength in doing something that's needed. Being an actual digital currency for simple basic transactions. I got Litecoin, I need to send $25, I want a penny transaction fee and for it to confirm within a reasonable time. That's when you use Litecoin and pretty much nothing else.
