Thread: Fentanyl Crisis

Blunt - April 25, 2022, 10:06 am

Fentanyl is running rapid thru the US boarder. Overdoses are at a all time high. This is a serious problem because where I live there has been hundreds of over doses just here where I live. ive lost friends and also a family member due to fentanyl. what's are y'all's opinion on this?

Komodo - April 25, 2022, 10:11 am

Fentanyl isn't fun.

Most of the time it's mixed into a supply and cut in order to add yield. Improperly mixed or adding to much can be fatal.

Also there's a more extreme drug called carfentanil which is quite literally an elephant tranquilizer that's being added to drugs. It's 100x more potent than fentanyl and 10,000x more potent than morphine.

I agree completely and also thank you for your services. I was on fentanyl for 4 months before I went into rehab. I'm a year clean now and it was really REALLY hard to get off of. I can't imagine anything more potent than fentanyl that's actually insane. my cousin overdosed and it really woke me up that okay there's a serious problem. never had to use narcan fortunately but the withdrawal I had in rehab was horrible. I threw up for days.

Tolerance.

Experienced drug users will actually seek out dealers that just supplied someone with an overdose because they know it's strong.

If you don't have a tolerance for it, we push a shit ton of narcan. But it's generally not enough.

Haha I try not to keep a tally.

I worked EMS before the military in a much bigger city.

Seen my fair share of needles still in a clearly deceased body.

Oh true. After reading your reply I remembered a documentary I watched on YouTube about it, really interesting stuff. Anyway, the dealer they interviewed said the same thing, they want the stuff that's killing people. It's wild!

Its one fucking weapon of a drug, I'll tell you that for free.

It ruins lives, and it doesn't take long in doing so.

I've lost quite a few friends & family members to Fentanyl Overdoses.

Thankfully there is things like NARCAN. Where I live, you can walk into any pharmacy and they will give you a NARCAN kit for free.

At any cpr/first aid course in my province they teach you how to effectively use NARCAN on someone who is overdosing.

Yes and no.

Narcan is great for overdosing. But fentanyl and carfentanil is so potent that it takes much more Narcan. Even with intravenous Narcan it can still take multiple to even possible wake someone up who's OD'd off it.

It's so bad where I live that everyone who does painkillers/benzos knowingly buy pressies w/ fent all the time, they don't care. Scary af.

ghostboy - April 25, 2022, 3:28 pm

I agree that fentanyl is becoming wildly accessible. They seize ginormous amounts of the stuff all the time at the border so a good spot to start prevention would be there.

A10247 - April 25, 2022, 3:33 pm

I think it's tragic, luckily I stopped with drugs before it got bad. I still know people that probably got caught up with fet, whether they knew it was fet or not. I wish them well.

I can tell you this from experience. It is like 100x harder than H to get off of. I couldn't even use the bathroom for 7 days. took a few months to be able to even poop right. not to mention vomiting and not being able to sleep or eat. it's a very bad drug and anyone that is trying to get off of it I wish them more than luck.

We have a fentanyl/opiod crisis in Canada too.. it got worse during covid.

The solution not drug at al. you can achieve greatness level sober.

If you have to then the solution is kit test but let's not kidding ourself we are not going to use them. and wait for delivery and really do that.

Not only the US, buddy... We have that Fent shit here in Norway too..

Lost two of my buddies to xan with fent in it in 2020.. same night, both of them.

EDIT: Before anyone says anything, blood reports came back from both of them and it was found traces of Alprazolam(the drug in xanax) and fentanyl in their bodies.

I don't like xan myself but to think that just because they wanted to chill.. they got killed instead.

I'm actually prescribed aprazolam (I have very intense anxiety) I do believe the addiction rate of Xanax is really bad though. and I'm sorry you lost your friends I know exactly how that is. Didn't realize it was reaching all the way to Norway also

I have seen a guy taken 3 trays of Rivotril (30 pills) and threatening his family and stabbing himself, but two days in hospital and 1 day with the police he was buying rivotril again... any kind of Clonazepam, alprazolam any kind of PAM really is not good to get addicted on.

I guess since you have them perscribed you follow the dosage and stay within safe limits but please DO NOT try anything with them.

Sorry for going a bit off-topic but really PAM's are not "childrentoys" and always buy a testkit to test the drugs you are buying.

SoulHarvester - April 27, 2022, 5:48 pm

The true unfortunate part about Fetanyl is it's affordability. It is cut into just about any drug nowadays and that makes for a true perfect storm of overdoses for an already mentally ill society.

Lilith - April 27, 2022, 6:27 pm

It makes me incredibly happy that I got sober years ago. Fentanyl was still being used to cut things but it wasn't nearly as common as it's become over the past four years. Horrified to see it growing in popularity though. My heart goes out to everyone who's had the misfortune of getting mislead into taking it.

Rionxee - April 27, 2022, 6:27 pm

One of the main reasons fentanyl increased in popularity is due to changing climates within MENA, specifically the reduced output from poppy farming within the region. In turn, the prices of heroin increased dramatically and for drug organizations, there was a vacuum in the amount of product being produced and the demand. It is known that the main organizations behind the heroin trade in the Americas are Mexican drug cartels. These organizations were introduced to fentanyl by Chinese traffickers acting in proxy to largely unregulated pharmaceutical producers in China. Fentanyl is extremely cheap and extremely potent, therefore the yield is immense for these organizations.

Fentanyl really first was imported due to cartel intermediaries testing the product in the western seaboard, specifically the Pacific Northwest. Early fentanyl distribution originated from Canada as Chinese vessels were smuggling shipments to Vancouver. It spread like wildfire first through Canada mostly and then made its way to the U.S. heartlands. After years of backlash, the fentanyl trade between China and the Americas was cracked down on, in response to this Mexican cartels brought Chinese pharmaceutical experts to Mexico and began building large fentanyl production facilities. Still, most of the precursors are arriving from China.

Unfortunately, because of how widespread the fentanyl/heroin trade has become many small level drug manufacturers are cutting corners and lacing products with fentanyl because of its ability to be pressed and/or mixed in with powders or crystals. It's a cheap substance and mass production of it has opened the doors to an alarming overdose epidemic within the U.S.

Ultimately, profit is the underlying cause of the fentanyl epidemic.
