Thread: Profile Userbars and Mentioning

2 random suggestions I thought of.

The ability to rearrange the group userbars on our profile like we can awards. Same thing as awards, 100 bytes everytime you rearrange them.

Being able to mention everyone within your group without mentioning every single person. Some kind of either group message option, or an "@everyone@" option of sorts that gives everyone within the group a notification about that post or thread.

In regards to the tagging request, it has been previously requested and Omni has responded to it:

Omni also put a thread in the Groups and Crews section:

Interesting, looks like he was also implementing a stats for groups to show different stats like activity for each member.

Was any of it implemented and only Owners can see or use it, or is it still a work in progress?

No it hasn't been implemented yet, it's still a work in progress.

It already pisses people off when people do it in discord, so why would this go any better?

It's one thing for an owner or a leader to do it, but everyone in a group should not have the capability.

I meant for the purposes of being a leader or the owner.

Would make it easier to make sure everyone's tracking a thread or post.
