Thread: NFT's Money Making

Techie - May 6, 2022, 3:02 pm

Hey everyone, this isnt an official selling post, it's just me checking if this would actually have any market here.

I've been in HF for a while now, mostly doing Crypto Exchanges and around the end of October I started changing my life. After spending some weeks researching NFT's, I decided to put some money in and start the journey. In around 6 months, after starting with 0.15eth, that at the time was around 600 bucks, I've made over $150k. I can say I have been using almost every method, from whitelists to using trading bots and this is now my day job. In 6 months I got an insane understanding of the space and I'm looking to give some people the opportunity to either start the same journey as me or to improve their game.

Without wanting to make this thread too long, I was thinking of actually start sharing a specific method I use that gives a shit ton of money, without a having to work a lot for it. I can also guarantee you that theres almost no one doing this. If I had to price this, just out of my head, I'd say a price of $1k usd would actually be undervalued and that you would make this in 1 to 2 weeks. I have been someone who bought those shitty e books or methods that promise a lot and dont give shit so I know that this is actually valuable.

So my question is, would this be something that you guys actually think would have a market here in HF? I would even be up to include some other stuff like other methods, trading bots I ve been using and maybe even some fewer spots for some people who would be willing to go deeper and that would want to learn everything I've learnt these past months. And before someone asks why would I be selling this if Im making money in NFTs, its easy, the more money I make the more hungry I am. I ve been spending 10 to 12 hours a day on this so I can change mine and my family's lives.

Give me honest feedback guys.

I've considered this as well, you could maybe do mentoring, not sure if its gonna capture much market share of hf. If you really don't care you can turn it into an ebook.

Honestly, dont think I ll ever do that. I rather explain things personally and according to everyone's learning capacity. I m looking for a more personal thing. I mean, the method I m bringing is doable by a child honestly, but going deeper, I would be wanting to explain it step by step personally

Depends on saturation etc. Message me some details (without telling me method) and I can give some advice

There is absolutely no saturation on this. I can already tell you that this specific method is in regards to getting whitelists. No grinding. None of that trash of paying people to spam for you.

It would have a market.

Please make it post-paid for trusted users!

I would love to be your first :)

Taytayx3 - May 7, 2022, 1:07 am

Dude this would be insanely helpful (speaking for myself) but I think a mentoring route would be much more efficient. Although hearing how much time you spend on your own situation I don't think that would be feasible. Maybe run the original idea and see how that plays out then while watching it, if it doesn't get the result you would like... change the strat. Keep me updated on this for sure! I've been wanting to get into the space but it's a lot to soak in and I get overwhelmed sometimes! Btw cheers on your success!

So basically when ur method slowed down, and doesn't make as much money as it used to, now u considring getting people in it, and make a profit while sharing it.
Shame bro shame.

Sometimes I wonder how some people brains work. You guys are weird af ?

April was actually the month I took more profits. The thing I'm offering doesn't slow down, has no saturation and is scalable to how many hours you spend on it. But thanks for bumping my thread.

Can I ask if you really see the NFT market being as lucrative today in a year from now?

Congrats on the gains btw. Suggest you make wise decisions with it.

yeah, just to be frank, best to show signed message or verified address. Famous proverb in crypto "Don't trust, verify"

Nonetheless best of luck on this. I have looked in avax/sol NFT, ETH gas fees are crazy but curious how you've done it

If it makes you money why do you want to sell it?

SIM-574702 - May 7, 2022, 12:47 pm

If you can prove your gains, it might be interesting.

Also with 1k price you could offer it as 3 monthly payments and a lawyer made contract. If the method is really legit you shouldn't have any problems making it official. 1k is a lot to risk for a method on HF where 99% of methods are fake or bad.

Honestly if you make the right plays daily or weekly you can earn at least 1 ETH profit if you know what your doing. I only spend a few hrs a day in the market.

Very true, addressing what omni said. Everyone in nft's knows the space moves at about 5x normal time. In a year I couldn't tell anyone where we will be in a year because every space evolves so fast.

But yes you can spend about an hour a day and make good money if you are looking in the right places.

Is it selling NFTs because big money is selling them. I know some people cranking out 3-4 projects a month. It's rinse and repeat.

Thread is from a few months back, NFTs don't have the same potential anymore, I believe. I used to make some good money when there was a lot of hype around them, it's most certainly still possible to make money there but not as much as half a year ago.

I agree, although the game would change massively. I don't see .jpegs with no intrinsic value be a long term thing. Don't get me wrong, I made some good money with them, but I never acted like they were the actual future.

I can see DAOs and NFTs become big in the future, but not the .jpegs.

Although I see NFTs like concert / cinema tickets, proof of ownership of things like houses or cars become successful, I don't see anything trading on open sea stay relevant over the years. Not even these metaverse games.

I'll pick up with this message since he touches on some important aspects. Even though the statement about potential is partially true, when it comes to trading/sniping, there's still constant opportunities and there will always be as long as the market is running. Obviously that with ETH on really low values, the daily profit gets lower. The reason why I kinda "abandoned" the idea that the initial thread mentioned is because it was related to the minting of new collections and as most of us that have been in the space for the past months know, we're now in a Free Mint meta that works in different ways than what we were seeing before. I've also been developing some bots myself for some more specific trading that has taken a lot of my free time.

I've still been reading replies, private messages and there's clearly people wanting to get to know more, get deeper into stuff and I've been thinking of actually taking some people in for some kind of mentoring, mostly towards trading/sniping. Would have to be a very limited amount of people since I'd basically be providing some of the tools/bots I use that in the end becomes direct competition to me and to the people I decide to take in. Still no clue about the value I'd set for it, but would be much lower than the $1k I mentioned, specially taking into consideration market conditions.

I'll hopefully be posting a more organized thread on this later this week, with all the infos, what you'd be getting, all of that.

popZmoke - August 15, 2022, 9:40 pm

The major thing in NFTs nowadays is the supply exceeds the demand by far. Back when NFTs just popped off, there were more people looking for promising projects than there were people creating them. Half a year ago, every other complete shit project sold out easily, floor price rose until reveal, then the project died. It was so easy to just get a WL spot, buy the NFTs and sell for +60% - +200% pre reveal.

Nowadays most projects don't even come close to selling out, there's way more projects popping up everywhere then there are people looking for new projects. Unless the project has some big ties or amazing marketing campaign, it's unlikely they sell out or/and rise in value.

It's definitely still possible to make money there, but it's just a lot harder.

The thing we are wondering is.... If you have made 150K in past 6 months, why do you need to sell mentoring on it? That is the big question here. As many others on HF, they promise insane gains on some methods, however, there would be no need for them to do so, as they could just scale their own methods on their own. You can say you want to start another source of income, but again, does not make sense if you are already earning 25K a month.

It is like if a telephone company are selling phone subscriptions, and as you claim, you are making bank doing this, now imagine the telephone company going to and saying, hey we can teach you regular folks how to sell phone subscriptions, if you pay us. I hope your logic is strong enough, to see that is a weird thing to do?

It's pretty easy, I'm nowhere near to making 25k a month now? When I have friends, friends of friends and family asking to learn that stuff, telling me they would give 500 bucks for me to invest for them, all that shit, I clearly see a market opportunity. I know for a fact that I'm ahead in this space and that as the market stands, my knowledge has a lot of value. Yes the reason why I'm doing this is for income only, like... Not really sure what's the point you're trying to get into. The good thing about blockchain is that it's all visible, you can't hide shit. You can literally see all the money I made, all the money I'm doing, which NFT's I'm buying, which tools I used/use, which NFT's I have staked, everything. All you need to do is to have my address, which I'll happily provide in DM's. Even if I was still doing 25k a month, I'd still be interested in providing a $1k method to some people and earn some extra.

The question is, if the market is with low volume, whitelists aren't really a thing anymore, even though there's some projects that still see insane pumps, if I am indeed making less money, why would you want to get it now? Because there's still a lot of money to make. As long as there's cash flow in the market, you can still find huge profit snipes and what I'm bringing to the table is how to do all of that. I have no doubt in my mind that if we ever see another NFT bull run, I'll be making way over 25k a month with the knowledge I've gotten these past months. My idea would mainly be to remain as someone that you'd be able to message whenever you would have a question, an idea, whatever.

NFTNerds is the premium, you can't go wrong with it. I'm currently using some other options that are not only cheaper but have the same speed and functionalities. I currently have tools for reveal/rare rank sniping (where I actually do the purchase, not where I make the buying decision for the rare rank sniping), another one where I get the rare rank deals but that lacks when it comes to purchasing, one for a complex mass/trait bidding and a minting bot that from what I've been seeing, stands as rank 1 when it comes to sucessful mints per number of users. Whenever I make the thread, I'll explain it a bit better, but some things I'm including is which tools I'm using, which isn't really important since you can just do some research and get there by yourself, but mainly how to use them, which is the only thing that matters in reality.

I'm sorry but the answer is no. Liquidity is king in this space. The more you have the more you'll make because you'll be able to access higher tier opportunities and tools. As a rough estimate, to start, I'd say 0.25ETH would be a minimum unfortunately. This would leave you with 0.1ETH balance and 0.15ETH to spend on one of the tools I use the most and that would allow you to 2x that 0.1ETH in 1 or 2 days.

Listen mate, I can't make your IQ go higher in order to understand a simple thing. You either have too much free time and you're trolling or you're just not wanting to understand it. If you make 140k in the first 3 months and 10k in the next 3 months, the average is still the same, that doesn't fking mean that I'm still doing 25k a month. What's the hard part to understand here? Jesus. And before you state anything else, I just used an example, no I didn't do 140k in the first 3 months and 10k in the next 3 lmao. I'm still failing to understand your point, yes I'm doing this for monetary purposes. And no it's not in crypto, the 150k is all liquidated and sitting pretty comfy outside of any crypto wallet or asset.

HAHAHAHAHAH you make me laugh too hard.... You state you got more than 150K in 6 months. Then that is an average of 25K. So when you say this on a forum, you should expect people to believe what you say ---> Which is in this case an average of 25K pr month. However, now you are saying that it is less than that, and that you are not averaging 25K pr month, which means that you are just plainly lying to everyone. xD

Yes monetary purposes, because you are no longer profiting on your method, so now it is "worthy" for you to sell, we have seen this with many other HF members. xD

I'm currently using some other options that are not only cheaper but have the same speed and functionalities. I currently have tools for reveal/rare rank sniping (where I actually do the purchase, not where I make the buying decision for the rare rank sniping), another one where I get the rare rank deals but that lacks when it comes to purchasing, one for a complex mass/trait bidding and a minting bot that from what I've been seeing, stands as rank 1 when it comes to sucessful mints per number of users. Whenever I make the thread, I'll explain it a bit better, but some things I'm including is which tools I'm using, which isn't really important since you can just do some research and get there by yourself, but mainly how to use them, which is the only thing that matters in reality. Yes I know Alpha Sharks, Tiny Astro's etc all provide same as nerds but idk. I just pref nerds.

I am looking forward to it! If you need a review lmk, will give my honest opinion.

You have to be one of the dumbest people I had the pleasure to discuss here in HackForums. Appreciate your "feedback", have a nice one.

Bro, if you show me some numbers, then I will be more than happy to bow down, however, your own confusion about how much you make on average, make me question how much money you have actually made.

I'll expalin it again, like you were my child, let's see if you can understand it once and for all. The best months I had in the NFT space were December, January and April. In these 3 months I made around $110k. February, and March were kinda decent and May was the worst one of them all specially because I was finishing my masters and had exams that month, making it so that I barely touched anything at all regarding to NFT's, while the market also being really bad. In these 3 months I made around $40k.

Now, I can see that you saw in a Youtube video how to calculate the average, congratulations, but you asked me why I would be wanting to start doing this if I was making $25k a month on average and my reply was that even though that's the average of the 6 months, that's not representative of how much I'm making per month now considering market conditions. NFT's volume is much lower than what it was and we saw ETH at 1k when it was at 4k in December, so obviously I'm not making as much money. With the current market conditions, in June, July and now in August, I'm doing 2-3ETH a month, which at current ETH price is $3800-$5700, while also taking some of my time into developing a specific bot for an opportunity that I found for the past months.

This is a tool developed by a collection called Acrocalypse, that calculates ETH profit for the wallet you input, using the current ETH value. It knows if the NFT was bought or minted and by how much and makes the calculation based on how much it left your wallet for. Most of the ETH I sold was sold at a value of $3-$4k and I have multiple wallets that are used for public mints, grabbing multiple whitelists, bunch of shit that I don't do on my main wallet to not get it compromised. In reality, I'm already way above the $150k.

I'll even give you my main wallet address: 0xD9c00b9cDB1d45CF265d1925eb1d004ee04D9f69

Since you like to do some math, go ahead and calculate every trade I have since the beginning and let everyone know if it checks out ?

The fact that you're surprised that someone made $150k in NFT's just shows me how completely naive you are about this space. There were literally hundreds of people doing way more than what I did. What I'm offering is simple, the knowledge to be able to make use of a next bull run in this space while still being able to do more than enough money in a monthly basis, while also being able to make more monthly income myself. Even if I was still doing 25k a month, is there even a need to justify wanting to make more money? That shit has to be the dumbest thing I've ever heard. I'll stop wanting to make money when I have a 10million house, couple of ferraris and lambos in my garage, which is probably never going to happen.

So, did this make it clear?

You made it very clear, but I think you misunderstood where I was coming from. I am not surprised people make 150K on NFTs, people have done more than 150K just for 1 NFT transaction, I am not questioning that. What I was questioning was the fact that on average you made 25K, but then you came back and said you make nowhere near that money, which you have now explained the reasons for.

And my second doubt was as to why you want to start a business revolving your method here on HF, because usually, when people make a service on HF, it is because they used to do the method themselves, then they started not making so much money on it anymore, and they see an opportunity to teach instead of doing their actual method or they choose to do both at the same time. Which is totally fair btw. And as you have explained above, you made your biggest gains in the beginning, now it is becoming less and therefore you choose HF to be the place where you teach the method for monetary gain.

This is absolutely all good.

It was the way you wrote the initial thread, that came across as you are still continuing to make 25k pr month. You did not outright say this in the thread, but you made it appear as you were still making the same bank as usual, which is not the case.

I hope that I have now made myself very clear, for you.

Glad that we came to an agreement ? Also the thread was made in the beginning of June, over 2 months has passed, markets are still in an absolute shit show, so yea there's no way someone is still making the same values they were doing during both bull runs of NFT's and Crypto. The thing that I think it's interesting is, if you're still able to learn and make money during a bear market, you're clearly set to succeed whenever the bull run comes, and that's what I think I can offer. But later this week, hopefully, I'll post a more detailed thread on everything I can provide, try to think of a fair value, maybe offer 1 or 2 vouch copies to people who are already in the space and can verify the information I'm giving, and we'll go from there.

I believe it would be a good idea if you share your OpenSea profile so people can actually see for themselves that you've had several successful trades. It would be hard to simply take your word for it.

Yea I posted my wallet in one of the posts I did on this thread. Just updated the main post with it though. I was actually starting one mentorship with one user here on HF but went on holidays for 2 weeks, so I'm still composing everything before getting anything out. Had some hiccups with some tools that actually closed doors, including the one I used the most, so there's no way I'm putting anything out before getting replacements for it and doing some testing.

Just some little something to juice things up, nothing like some holidays to refresh your mind. Felt like back then in the bull market ? how I miss those days.

Thats cool. Umm how is the ETH NFT market and how hard is it in general to get WLs over there compared to SOL NFTs.

I have been doing SOL NFTs since 6-7 months and thinking of getting into ETH NFTs.
