SoulHarvester - May 9, 2022, 10:22 pm

Haha that's crazy but not surprising at all and this will hardly effect the industry at all.

Idk how this is over for the rap game, but 42 dugg was arrested by feds about a week ago as well, and faces up to five years vs 6 months he had the option to serve.

I mean every rapper you've listed is an unimportant figure in the rap game. Soooo nothing really changed here, just a bunch of bad rappers having their careers ended.

And you are, what, fifteen? Lol

You must not know anything about this genre.

You keep quoting me and trying to start fights, even when I choose not to engage with you... You seem like the teenager here. You even have me on your ignore list and you still go out of your way to try to engage with me. Do you want to fuck or something baby? you're not my type.

I'm 33, I've seen more of the rap game then you will ever dream of cupcake.

Just a general question, which artists would you say in your opinion, are important figures in the rap game? Past or present.

Goku - May 11, 2022, 6:42 am

Honestly, don't know either of them.

A couple of days ago, before they were arrested, I saw a video of Young Thug being asked a simple question, and he couldn't answer it.

[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qy14qYmdm30>]

Sorry, but they sound extremely stupid xD

Also, they are arrested because of their gang affiliation.

So, they deserve it.

You live by the sword, you die by the sword. Right?

Don't get wrong, I grew up on the streets. I know that life can be hard.

But, that doesn't excuse their own actions.

Biggie Smalls, Tupac Shakur, Eminem, Dr. Dre, NWA, Easy E, Ice Cube, Snoop Dogg, Bone, Twista, Tech N9ne and then you have the more recent...

Juice Wrld, Logic, Joyner Lucas. I can keep going but you get the idea. Anyone can rap garbage lyrics over 808 drums and that's most of what you see today. Opposed to the lyrical geniuses we've seen in the past.

Let that be a lesson for the rest of these idiots. Real gs move in silence. This whole generation of dress and purse sporting wangstas who use crimes for clout and sing songs about their illegal activity then preach a "no snitching" mentality lol

There are realistically some really big names in the list that was brought to your attention, whether you like them or not. Hell, I don't even like them much myself other than a couple songs, and I'll still admit they're really big in the CURRENT scene.

The artists you mentioned are undoubtedly undefeated when it comes to lyricism, but Rap ain't all about lyrics, a good beat and a nice voice/flow can turn a few dumb sentences into gold, you don't gotta be a genius to make something that sounds like fire.

Okay, you are welcome to your opinion. Them leaving the "rap game" will have no effect on the music at large.

I don't understand how he can say 'big names'. But I don't know anybody he mentioned ?

I think that Taylor Swift quitting music would have more impact on Hip-hop than does rappers he mentioned hahaha.
