

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Money Making Ebooks

OnlyFans_Profit - May 18, 2022, 6:50 am

I know there's been a good amount of discussion about some of these, but why don't they remove the ones that are obviously a scam?

I feel like new members are much more likely to get a bad taste in their mouth from this forum because of shitty, outdated methods being sold for insane prices.

bk randy - May 18, 2022, 7:21 am

They should remove the ones that promise profit, considering, advertising "Get rich quick" schemes are not allowed here. This is stated somewhere in the Help Docs. So yea, good question.

Pow3r - May 18, 2022, 7:25 am

It's been discussed a lot over the years and whilst I dislike scammers a lot, I also have to say if you are willing to buy an ebook or method off a 15 year old geek who's claiming to be able to make you 500+ a day, despite him living with his Mom still and only ever used his dick to piss out of, I'm afraid it's a you problem and it's probably a good life lesson.

OnlyFans_Profit - May 18, 2022, 7:29 am

(May 18, 2022 07:25 AM)Pow3r Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's been discussed a lot over the years and whilst I dislike scammers a lot, I also have to say if you are willing to buy an ebook or method off a 15 year old geek who's claiming to be able to make you 500+ a day, despite him living with his Mom still and only ever used his dick to piss out of, I'm afraid it's a you problem and it's probably a good life lesson.

I agree, but they take credibility away from the real methods that actually work on the forum.

Just nobody knows what's fake or not.

SoulHarvester - May 18, 2022, 8:32 am

Well unfortunately financial gurus and get rich quick schemes are nothing new and definitely not going anywhere. They can be guised under so many variants that it truly will be a cat and mouse game. But I agree of cleaning house with self proclaimed gurus. Back in 2011-2014 you could find legitimate people not talking out of their ass more often than not. Today is just a sad version.

OnlyFans_Profit - May 18, 2022, 8:40 am

(May 18, 2022 08:32 AM)SoulHarvester Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well unfortunately financial gurus and get rich quick schemes are nothing new and definitely not going anywhere. They can be guided under so many variants that it truly will be a cat and mouse game. But I agree of cleaning house with self proclaimed gurus. Back in 2011-2014 you could find legitimate people not talking out of their ass more often than not. Today is just a sad version.

I completely agree with you.

lazyone - May 18, 2022, 11:41 am

(May 18, 2022 08:40 AM)OnlyFans_Profit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I completely agree with you.

I agree too sadly I feel like the whole world changed / got more materialistic

OnlyFans_Profit - May 18, 2022, 11:42 am

(May 18, 2022 11:41 AM)lazyone Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I agree too sadly I feel like the whole world changed / got more materialistic
We're moving into a state of "every man for himself" and it sucks.

Envy - May 18, 2022, 12:11 pm

Ebooks don't get removed is mainly for two reasons: (based on my opinion)

1. Just because you purchase one of these methods and it doesn't turn out to be highly profitable, or turnkey money making solution, doesn't mean it's a scam. Just means your expectations are beyond high as you purchased one of these ebooks expecting it to lay out a simply problem-free plan to get rich. First time I ever purchased one was in 2014, and it was a .PDF on how to make money by outsourcing articles for a site that pays for written articles. Does this mean it's a scam? It's a legitimate money making method, it's just not the "get rich quick scheme" that everyone hopes for after spending $25-$30 on it.

2. They make immense money for the forum. Between forum features and stickies, bytes for bumping, vendor upgrades, etc. An example being some of the products posted by Varane or Trappy ... they've been around for years, 3-5 years for each product and they're constantly featured and stickied. These products alone create a passive crypto income for the forum admin. Don't forget that the people who make money, appreciate and recognize the forum for what it is and their success, also turn around and give back to the forum as well with rewards, upgrades, giveaways, etc.

Herbert - May 18, 2022, 12:31 pm

There will always be bad apples.

Unfortunately, we all fall victim to it at least once.

I'm not sure what you're suggesting, but it sounds excessive.

anonmods11 - May 18, 2022, 1:48 pm

(May 18, 2022 06:50 AM)OnlyFans_Profit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I know there's been a good amount of discussion about some of these, but why don't they remove the ones that are obviously a scam?

I feel like new members are much more likely to get a bad taste in their mouth from this forum because of shitty, outdated methods being sold for insane prices.

in that case the entire ebook section should be removed. ALL ebooks are shitty and just a quick cashgrab

OnlyFans_Profit - May 18, 2022, 2:39 pm

(May 18, 2022 01:48 PM)anonmods11 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) in that case the entire ebook section should be removed. ALL ebooks are shitty and just a quick cashgrab

That's actually not true.

Matthew 6:33 - May 18, 2022, 4:23 pm

(May 18, 2022 12:11 PM)Rise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ebooks don't get removed is mainly for two reasons: (based on my opinion)

1. Just because you purchase one of these methods and it doesn't turn out to be highly profitable, or turnkey money making solution, doesn't mean it's a scam. Just means your expectations are beyond high as you purchased one of these ebooks expecting it to lay out a simply problem-free plan to get rich. First time I ever purchased one was in 2014, and it was a .PDF on how to make money by outsourcing articles for a site that pays for written articles. Does this mean it's a scam? It's a legitimate money making method, it's just not the "get rich quick scheme" that everyone hopes for after spending $25-$30 on it.

2. They make immense money for the forum. Between forum features and stickies, bytes for bumping, vendor upgrades, etc. An example being some of the products posted by Varane or Trappy ... they've been around for years, 3-5 years for each product and they're constantly featured and stickied. These products alone create a passive crypto income for the forum admin. Don't forget that the people who make money, appreciate and recognize the forum for what it is and their success, also turn around and give back to the forum as well with rewards, upgrades, giveaways, etc.

I get what you are saying, it's revenue for the forums. I just don't like how it's turning a blind eye when it's obviously fake/not working methods. Comparing it to a bad cop that takes 25% of the drug dealer sales that he doesn't arrest. I don't know, maybe they should have a mute/disable button for us to use on certain category.

OnlyFans_Profit - May 18, 2022, 6:48 pm

(May 18, 2022 04:23 PM)Futurama Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I get what you are saying, it's revenue for the forums. I just don't like how it's turning a blind eye when it's obviously fake/not working methods. Comparing it to a bad cop that takes 25% of the drug dealer sales that he doesn't arrest. I don't know, maybe they should have a mute/disable button for us to use on certain category.

I just feel like there needs to be better new member education about certain claims and methods. Like at the top of Premium Sellers, it should say, Just ask yourself, if someone can make $500 per day online, why would they sell it for $25?

That's basically all they should do IMO.

Herbert - May 19, 2022, 3:58 am

(May 18, 2022 06:48 PM)OnlyFans_Profit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I just feel like there needs to be better new member education about certain claims and methods. Like at the top of Premium Sellers, it should say, Just ask yourself, if someone can make $500 per day online, why would they sell it for $25?

That's basically all they should do IMO.

So, what is it? is it "being sold for insane prices" or just $25?

This is a bit hypocritical, don't you think?

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6204117>

Makes me believe you're not looking out for new users, but more so a deliberate attempt at eliminating your competition.

Cyam - May 19, 2022, 4:27 am

(May 18, 2022 12:11 PM)Rise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ebooks don't get removed is mainly for two reasons: (based on my opinion)

1. Just because you purchase one of these methods and it doesn't turn out to be highly profitable, or turnkey money making solution, doesn't mean it's a scam. Just means your expectations are beyond high as you purchased one of these ebooks expecting it to lay out a simply problem-free plan to get rich. First time I ever purchased one was in 2014, and it was a .PDF on how to make money by outsourcing articles for a site that pays for written articles. Does this mean it's a scam? It's a legitimate money making method, it's just not the "get rich quick scheme" that everyone hopes for after spending $25-$30 on it.

2. They make immense money for the forum. Between forum features and stickies, bytes for bumping, vendor upgrades, etc. An example being some of the products posted by Varane or Trappy ... they've been around for years, 3-5 years for each product and they're constantly featured and stickied. These products alone create a passive crypto income for the forum admin. Don't forget that the people who make money, appreciate and recognize the forum for what it is and their success, also turn around and give back to the forum as well with rewards, upgrades, giveaways, etc.

Perfectly said.

I just wanted to add that buying stuff on this forum is at your own discretion.

Staff won't get involved in the deals and that's pretty much mentioned everywhere (contracts, welcome PM, advertisements etc.)

OnlyFans_Profit - May 19, 2022, 4:39 am

(May 19, 2022 03:58 AM)Herbert Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So, what is it? is it "being sold for insane prices" or just $25?

This is a bit hypocritical, don't you think?

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6204117>

Makes me believe you're not looking out for new users, but more so a deliberate attempt at eliminating your competition.

Whoa. I see how you could think that, but I admit I market my methods aggressively. But they do actually work and people can attest to that.

They're not get rich quick schemes.

Envy - May 19, 2022, 10:56 am

(May 19, 2022 03:58 AM)Herbert Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So, what is it? is it "being sold for insane prices" or just $25?

This is a bit hypocritical, don't you think?

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6204117>

Makes me believe you're not looking out for new users, but more so a deliberate attempt at eliminating your competition.

That's exactly what it is though.

This thread is screaming "get rid of ebooks so mine can succeed".

Cyam - May 19, 2022, 11:11 am

One more thing I want to mention.

Imagine a theory where your idea got accepted—how would you decide what is a scam and what is not?

As far as I know, 99.99% of the e-Books you on here aren't really a scam in a way where you would be handed an empty PDF upon purchase. These e-Books actually do provide you with methods that will most likely earn you money. The amount of money you can earn, though, will in most cases be much, much less than advertised which I wouldn't call a scam, but shady advertising practices. We see that daily in real life as well, not just on here.

If you did somehow manage to come up with a way to sort out which e-Book is a scam and which one is not, remember that only staff members would be competent to delete threads. You probably know where this is going because no staff member can be BOTHERED to do that thing manually.

This is why they put "deal with caution" all around the forum.

I can't always blame people who get scammed by reputable members over currency exchange because there are a lot of exit scams going on. Being scammed over a non-working e-Book is a different story though. How can you actually believe you can make $500 per day with a $25 purchase? Problem is that people are so blinded with the "getting-rich-quick scheme" they actually buy these.

OnlyFans_Profit - May 19, 2022, 11:16 am

(May 19, 2022 10:56 AM)Rise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's exactly what it is though.

This thread is screaming "get rid of ebooks so mine can succeed".

I'll never be able to convince you and I won't try, but I swear to god that was not my intention posting this.