(May 26, 2022 07:02 PM)Hell Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hi everyone. I received a Vouch copy from OP. Here is my Honest Review.

This is Hell and on behalf of "Money Masters" i am reviewing OPs "Flux Advanced Trading Indicator".

I received a lifetime vouch copy of his indicators.

OP was lightning fast in adding the invite only indicators on my Trading View account. I had some issues in viewing the indicators on the Trading View app and informed the same to OP. I switched to website and the indicators showed up.

The first indicator gives "Buy/Sell" signals and i checked the indicator in all timeframes and it worked flawlessly. I used the "BTC/USDT" script on trading view and the indicator was giving me Buy/Sell signals in real time.

The indicator also has inbuilt "TP/SL" which is customisable and easy to use and take advantage of.

The second indicator is based on "Risk Management" and will be very helpful in safeguarding your capital.

Some amazing features of "Flux Advanced Trading Indicator" are :

1. Colour scheme of Buy/Sell signals are customisable , but i would suggest to leave it as it is.

2. Works in all timeframes.

3. There was no lag and i don't see it as a lagging indicator. It was working in real time.

4. OP was very supportive in telling me how to tweak the settings according to my script i was using to trade.

5. Other than crypto, i also trade in my local stock exchange and it was working flawlessly as well. I backtested the signals and it was very very accurate.

I think with the right setting and tweaks , i am pretty sure this indicators can be very profitable and accurate. I am also confident that OP will get the issue with the indicators on the app sorted out. It could be possible that the issue was only at my end. Notwithstanding , there were working very well on the website.

I will personally post my profits once i start using these indicators to trade.

The indicators can be rated 9/10 overall.

Good luck with Sales.

- Regards , Hell.

Thank you very much for the review. I will discuss with you further ways to improve the indicator and implement the suggestions. Thanks again.

Some full disclosure for you guys. Take a look at this chart.

As you can see the buy sell signals on the hourly chart look like a very clear way to place your buy and and sell orders and when to take profit. However if you look at the blue lines I have drawn, these trades would largely result in loss if proper risk management and TP/SL isn't used. I like to use the Support and resistance lines to exit my trade for maximum profit. If you enter a Long on the Buy signal and then close it on the sell signal you will not make as much money and potentially lose some.

Mohinder - May 29, 2022, 4:44 am

Hey OP.

Correct me if i'm wrong here:

Your indicator is just a bunch of indicators slapped on top of eachother right?

And it trades when there is a breakout on the supertrend right?

For example here is your indicator vs the free super trend from Lux:

Yours:

Lux:

Not trying to bash your sales but you are literally selling free stuff right?

You risk management tool:

Lux risk management tool:

dostojewsk1 - May 29, 2022, 5:35 am

So basically I've just seen the post above me and checked a few things which seem weird to me.

The indicator looks like a combination of 3 free Indicators from Lux (as @Mohinder already stated)

Risk-Management-Tool-LUX

Support-and-Resistance-Levels-with-Breaks-LUX

Supertrend-Channels-LUX

(All of them are open source and can just be edited/copy-pasted to one Indicator on Tradingview)

Even OP's Indicator name is Flux -> fLux -> ???

Not trying to damage your sales, but I'm not a fan of people selling free stuff. If I am wrong, please feel free to prove me wrong.

Lux risk management tool:

Yes, my indicator is made from a variation of Open source code and custom code as well. Just like every indicator out there, I simply put together the best of the strategies I find most effective. We have no affiliation with 'Lux' trading and from what I have googled it's not free either. My main indicator is mainly my own custom code when it comes to printing signals based off my favorite sure fire indicators, the only thing I have added is the S+R lines which I did not code personally as deemed a waste of my time. The risk Management tool is written entirely buy me from a guide with some custom tweaking, this probably explains the similarities in the indicator you have found. Personally I wasn't planning to add a risk management to the indicator but it was something that was requested. I feel it doesn't offer a great indicator anyway as explained in my docs.

UPDATE: had a great weekend and if you were using the indicator over the weekend too I'm sure you were pleased as well.

EDIT: BTW all credit is given in my code.

I don't See any similarity with LUX in the main indicator. I had Subscription to them as well. The Risk management looked similar. But I would vouch for the main indicator. It's unique.

Thank you, We actually did an overhaul of the RMC over the weekend as SL/TP levels I don't find reliable. Granted it is largely based on open source Risk/Reward indicator but to reiterate the RMC isn't really what we are selling we just like to add something to protect our clients capital (as well as our own). As always proper credit is given in the comments.

Alright I wanted to refrain from posting here as I do know OP and only had positive experiences with him.

BUT.

OP please don't lie, this is literally 3 of LUX free indicators slapped together, you slightly recolored their trend, changed some settings, added LUX support and resistance and completely copy pasted their risk management.

I really don't want to out you here in public but please don't act like you made this yourself, because you did not.

"The risk tool is completely written by me from a guide" mind to link that guide?
Like again i really like you man, but it's literally 100% the same as LUX's free risk management tool so just link the guide so we can see you speak the truth.
Just slapping some shit together and selling it as your own is always a dick move, so please proof us wrong here man.

I find this really unfair numerous conversations with you. I was a valued member of your community and due to some serious issues I was unable to carry on using your indicator and instead made a working (much more simple) version of my own trading indicator. I did not know this LUX before reading the comments in this thread. LuxAlgo which I assume you are talking about is a PAID script, the free S+R they offer is nothing similar to mine and again why would I write this code from scratch when the scripts are readily available. Not one point did I claim it was written completely from scratch I just compiled a series of effective scripts into a highly functioning indicator? It does exactly what it says it does so what is the problem? It achieves the results that I claim at a perfectly affordable price and people are just tearing my thread to bits.

Literally this morning I answered a PM saying that your indicator was highly advanced I just didn't renew it due to various other ventures. Including moving towards the NFT scene. I am happy to show one third party my code to show that I have not ripped anything from this paid service 'LuxAlgo' and all I am selling is a working indicator. I even offer a free trial to let people make their own minds up about it first.

LUX page: <https://www.tradingview.com/u/LuxAlgo/#published-scripts>
<https://docs.luxalgo.com/lux-algo-premium-indicators/lux-algo> LUX premium indicator

My indicator without adjustments.

To be fair, If anyone feels cheated by this, I am more that happy to refund them, I would also like to call out anyone else selling 'Private indicators' on this board to make sure they haven't cut corners by not writing a simple S+R themselves as it's just a waste of time. I checked Lux page myself and it's just a series of copied indicators itself such as auto fib, linear regression and S+R based on pivot points. All their good indicators are paid so where have I plagiarized from exactly?

Again brother, like i said before, this is not personally against you as i really like you.

I really did not want to post here but this is simply what this is, and the users above are right.

Lux offers tons of free open source indicators on tradingview, so you might have used some of their code on accident but it looks extremely similar.

Again could you post the guide? Genuinely curious as to how they did that so an guide will help me out with that.

I honestly swear I have not stolen anything from this Lux person. Timo, I am even happy to show you the code for my (simple) script.

I feel I have been unfairly judged in this thread. I have provided the link in which you asked for and I can provide the theories and learning of the code samples. I have not meant to lead anyone astray and have not stolen anyone else's work. When following pine tutorials unfortunately due to the nature of it they're will be similarities. This I do promise to my existing and future customers. My indicator is accurate, if followed with proper risk management you will succeed in the majority of your trades, especially in a linear moving market. Or you will be refunded. That I guarantee. As posted above i did not steal 'Lux Risk management' but simply followed a guide on it's creation which turns out may of indirectly been written by him? Not sure from this...

I am not trying to compete with TimokL's indicator but simply offer an affordable, reliable alternative.

For future updates I plan to add more pattern based recognition to create accurate profit levels for example shown in this video <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=e9O4Z9gxwul>

We all have to start to learn somewhere...

Full disclosure, here is my S+R code:

```
//Support and Resistance
```

```
left = input(10)
```

```
right = input(10)
```

```
hih = pivothigh(high, left, right)
```

```
lol = pivotlow (low , left, right)
```

```
top = valuewhen(hih, high[right], 0)
```

```
bot = valuewhen(lol, low [right], 0)
```

```
res = plot(top, color=top != top[1] ? na : #00ced1, offset=-left)
```

```
sup = plot(bot, color=bot != bot[1] ? na : #dc143c, offset=-left)
```

and here is Lux's

<https://www.tradingview.com/script/JDFoWQbL-Support-and-Resistance-Levels-with-Breaks-LUX/> anything else I need to prove?

Due to a lot of hate and accused stealing of other peoples work, I have simplified my UI, I plan on adding EMA lines next as requested.

Just to check if this indicator from TV has repainting issue?

I have personally tried a lot of indicators look pretty accurate in TV however all of them are having repainting issue.
