Well , think of it as promoting services to companies who would like to get customers. And they pay you a price per customer what they feel is right.

For example , if you are starting a company and you know you can make $xxx off a customer in the long term with their details. You would create an offer stating the nature of your company which will have a few fields for the customer to enter. This offer is then being promoted by affiliates , who you will need to pay a certain amount per customer they bring you.

Are you good at Adult CPA? If so we might can work together.

Could you send me more details please? What network are you working on and what kinda offers are you promoting?

If anyone else would like some free winning creatives and are running social traffic , feel free to comment in this thread please.

I have read things about CPA for years (I mean like, topics, not actual e-books or anything) and I never really got the true point of it. From my understanding I would be registering to a CPA network, finding a niche(?) and creating a landing page, to actually get the CPA partner new customers?

Is it the same as Affiliate marketing? Can you maybe give a fictional example of how a good working 'CPA-chain' would work?

It's exactly what you referred. To give you an example , Suppose you are starting a company providing the service of grooming for dogs. You can promote this in 2 ways.

1. You can find a media buyer and tell them that you want X leads of people who are interested in your service. And you tell them that you will pay them $5 per lead. And let's suppose that you make a profit of $100 off a successful service from 1 customer . So if he sends you 20 leads , and even one of them convert , you have achieved breakeven . In most cases , if you are speaking with experienced media buyers , they will send you qualified leads , so there is a good chance that atleast 3-4 or even more may convert.

2. In the 2nd way , You would contact an affiliate network and let them know the same thing. You offer them $5 per lead , and they will take their commission and maybe offer $4 per lead and ask many of their affiliates to promote it. You will get different leads from different affiliates , and if a specific affiliate's leads are working very well for you ie, almost all his leads are converting to sales, You can let the aff network know about this and bump the payout per lead , which they will let him know and he can increase his traffic and bring you more customers.

Hope it made sense. Feel free to ask me any dooubts.

It's not easy now to promote and get conversions with free traffic. But some of the best ways would be uploading YT videos , making YT comments , posting answers on Quora , Reddit etc. And joining FB groups for the relevant niche and try to promote your product there.

A combination of all the above done consistently is probably the only way to benefit from free traffic in the long term.

There are a few ways. You could upload your video on your channel and comment on popular videos asking them to visit your channel to get "the niche" , and you could give the comment upvotes and then you could buy services which allow youtube replies to comments where others say that your channel works .

a 20% share of revenue by using your code, set per customer payment, benefits or discounts you earn, and of course users get discounts too by applying your affiliate code...

How do you profit from the best ads providers (Facebook, Google) with a 2$-3$ offer?

What's an alternative cheaper media that converts?

If you have the right ads , you can definitely make a $3 offer profitable with FB for sure.

Other sources are native/push/pops but that's not HQ traffic like FB so you would probably need more time.

I've always been using paid traffic , so not sure about free , but for paid , Loans are always evergreen and so is E-com. You can also try Solar , pest control or other services targetted to a specific group of people.

great bro! By the way I saw a solar energy offer in a CPA network in which I am, I thought of promoting it through FB marketplace and classified ads, what do you think?

Yep , Solar energy offers are pretty good right now. Try to promote in other Geos , US , the CPC and CPM may be higher , but there are many other untapped geos in which you can make a killing with Solar right now.

thanks for your advice bro! At the moment I don't have money to test with paid traffic, that's why I want to work with free traffic to capitalize, I have several ideas of niches to work with FB, classified ads and other platforms, you have skype to talk about CPA strategies ?

Captain Pre - June 17, 2022, 2:30 am

Hey, I would love to connect with you on a messaging app if possible.

But my question is, There are a lot of offers and I understand Paid Ads are the way to go. How do you choose your offers & How do you test the offers?

I also saw you talk about Solar & Pest Control offers, Those seem out of the usual Free giftcard/Adult/Fatloss niches most affiliate networks push. What niche would you recommend a beginner to try?

Have always wanted to start some sorta Affiliate journey, lets's hope your answers would get me one step closer! Thanks in advance.

The best way to get a working offer is to talk to the AM of your network. They will give you list of what offers are working and they have no reason to lie to you. You would be better off starting with something that they suggest as they already have the data as to what's working where.

The giftcard/Adult niches are also good but they are greyhat/blackhat and eventually you will get suspended.

If you are a beginner , you should start with a SOI (Single Opt-in) or App install offer as conversions will be faster for that and you will get an idea quickly of what kind of ads work and what does not.

The part about adult niches eventually getting you suspended only come true if you're pushing adult campaigns on ad-networks which do not allow adult ads. It's actually not grey- or blackhat it's completely legal advertising for adult CPA campaigns, and very lucrative if you're able to focus tier 1 countries. DOI and SOI pays upto $12 on networks like Clickdealer if you can target the right countries.

@captain pre: The adult niche is probably the easiest to start getting leads from because the people are usually gullible and will sign up to anything you ask, if they believe you're a hot and willing girl.
