Thread: Ambition With No Direction - Hello Everyone!

The ambitious soul.....

Hello, I am UrBruhta,

I want to thank anyone who stopped by and took the time to read this introduction. I want to share a bit about myself and my journey.

I am a very ambitious person who has experienced a lot lately. I've been to many communities searching for new opportunities that might provide a better life for my family, with very little success after three years in and out of several places.

I enjoy challenges and have learned so much. I've obtained my associate's, bachelor's, and master's in Cyber Security.

I've come to this community to expand my resources, contribute, and potentially be a step closer to the financial relief I seek. I've spent a lot of resources paying for E-Books or getting scammed, or having most of my projects fall through. I've probably lost around $22,000 in the past three years. It's been very discouraging, but it was something I needed to learn because I have been so naive. I seek no pity from anyone or handouts; I genuinely enjoy learning; I've taught myself so many skills, and I know eventually I will be successful.

I am hungry to succeed, and after the loss of my father recently, I have realized the importance of continued resilience.

Skills I've acquired

Cyber Security -Pentesting (Red Team), Dehashing, Hashing, Op Sec, Cyber Forensics, Reverse engineering, Encryption, Malware analysis, Metasploit, Threat mitigation.

System Administration

Web Development -Programming / Scripting - Javascript, Python, NodeJS, HTML, SQL, C#, Ansible SMTP protocols Proxy creation
Web scraping

I'm very confident in the cyber security role. I'm just not into anything that causes risk where I cannot father my kids. I also own multiple tools.

Some notable ones =

SMTP Mailers, Metasploit, XEvil, XRunner, and A lot of malware I reversed; I just leaked them.

I'm not sure what journey awaits me or what opportunities I find here nor if anyone will really care to work or get to know me, but I want to say thank you for having me here and I hope that I can be someone who always can see the good in others / be positive, despite being surrounded by sharks.

This is a very HQ introduction.

Welcome to the forum UrBruhta . Please read the Help Docs for the rules.

You will learn a lot here.

UrBruhta - May 31, 2022, 7:36 pm

I really appreciate that @Athr, I'm really hoping so I mean the information you linked me I like how quality is maintained by the rules they have here. That is already a good start, to be honest. I'll be catching up on some more sections but for the most part, have everything down pack. I'm really excited to really see what I can do here and what types of people I get to meet.

Deany - May 31, 2022, 10:37 pm

Welcome, UrBruhta. Agreed, that's a great HQ introduction if I say so myself. Hope you enjoy your stay!

Azythum - May 31, 2022, 10:45 pm

Welcome, if you want to make money, I think you don't need to find other methods as you have a master degree ! Or with money maybe something more institutional like OSCP would be interesting.

I would go to youtube and learn affiliate marketing as this and i would apply some free traffic sources methods then when you get some income i would invest in paid traffic

Very nice introduction!

whatsgoodie - June 1, 2022, 6:03 pm

enjoy ur stay brother, i hope you do.!!

UrBruhta - June 1, 2022, 6:59 pm

First off, please let me start by saying to everyone thank you. I genuinely am surprised to see the level of engagement I have thus far.

I've been taking some time to go over the rules, look at the features, and say I'm impressed. I'm not sure what I plan to dabble into, but I know, for now, I am just interacting with as many people as I can.

Azy, you're suitable with the type of credentials I have; yes, my average time job is excellent; I'm on a six-figure salary currently but let me explain why I continue to seek additional revenue just for perspective sake.

A low-end six-figure salary isn't what it used to be made. Once you factor in my partner being a stay-at-home mother with two children and Six-figure college debt and paying for your kids' education, well, it gets pretty pricy.

I'm an ambitious man; it's a curse and a gift. I feel discontent if I feel stagnant career-wise and in my education. To accomplish the charity, I wish to one day set up, be a better mentor/aide to others and truthfully be free from a financial burden; one must eliminate the ceiling society expects to bound us to. There is no ceiling, and I want to continue to advance while bringing others with me to bridge the wealth gaps we so heavily remain in.

(Hope this helped)

Deany Thank you; if one is to learn or accomplish anything in life truly, quality is the key, am I right? You, my friend, are quality.

udiablospartan Thanks for the lovely suggestion, I'm not going to lie, I know very little about CPA other than it is something that A LOT of people try to push on you, it feels very sales are driven and very diluted in terms of competition. I am honestly sure it is profitable, but I also know it's something that takes far more patience than I think I can have.

molly69 No, you, Just kidding. Thank you for the warm welcome, my fellow brutah.

whatsgoodie Thanks, goodie; I'm hoping it's a fun ride, that's for sure.

(Jun 2, 2022 10:57 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hi, welcome to hf, by the way, I think you're lying about having a master's in cyber security. You wouldn't have spent $22,000 on ebooks from skids scamming you if it were true. You would have the smarts from the start to know you will get scammed. ?

Hello Phantomman55, to be honest, I don't blame you for disbelieving me. Let me start by first thanking you for reading up on my introduction. I believe that constructive feedback is crucial to one's development and experiences, so your comment takes no offense.

Do you want to know something? I'm in disbelief, but there is a fine line between being book smart and street smart. Unfortunately, I came from a fortunate family that allowed me to grow up sheltered and raised in a loving home. (Not that many of us have or have not but let me get to the point)

Even though I had the experience from college and my career, I think you underestimate how personality/background comes into play as far as being taken advantage of quickly. I used to be very naive; I genuinely believe it is good in most people. I pride myself on finding that in others, even if it is hard at times, and I enjoy helping others. I figured if someone was willing to scam me for 10 dollars, they desperately needed that money more than I did. I think you also need to factor in patience and desperation as well. What can I say? I was desperate to be the best father I could be, knowing that I had my first child. I'm more than happy to show verification of my credentials at any time if needed (Of course, with OPSEC being involved). Honestly, being naive was just my biggest flaw. I've learned a lot from my mistakes and realize you can't just keep risking things on blind faith from strangers.

I hope to continue to learn and expand myself truthfully. I still genuinely appreciate your feedback, and I wish you nothing but the best, my fellow brutal.

Thank you. Yes, I've upgraded my membership here to support the forums. I'm excited to see some high-quality people here. I welcome all feedback and suggestions continually. What is a world without a difference? The difference is what truly makes us unique and fun to collaborate with. Once we recognize that common ground can be found amongst strangers, we can work on building a better tomorrow. Food for thought.... <3
