

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How many seconds will you wait holding the door for someone?

TikTokCash - June 1, 2022, 3:15 pm

If you had to put a number of seconds to it, how many seconds do you wait for people before you decide it's not worth holding the door?

For me, it's 5 seconds.

SoulHarvester - June 1, 2022, 3:19 pm

I will wait as long as it takes if it's elderly or disabled people.

Hot woman maybe 3 mins?

Friends 0

Family 2.5 seconds (Best I could do)

65DUD - June 1, 2022, 3:36 pm

I would probably wait until they have entered or exited the doorway.

TikTokCash - June 1, 2022, 3:50 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 03:36 PM)65DUD Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would probably wait until they have entered or exited the doorway.

Ok go to the nearest door and please hold it for me I'll be there soon. Lol. That's not what I'm asking

65DUD - June 1, 2022, 3:54 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 03:50 PM)TikTokCash Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ok go to the nearest door and please hold it for me I'll be there soon. Lol. That's not what I'm asking

I mean it kind of is but until i say it's not worth it would be something like around 7 seconds.

SIM-5172123 - June 1, 2022, 3:56 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 03:19 PM)SoulHarvester Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I will wait as long as it takes if it's elderly or disabled people.

exact the same but 0 for everything else

Eran - June 1, 2022, 3:59 pm

Uh not something I think about. I just automatically kinda know if it's worth holding or nah.

TikTokCash - June 1, 2022, 4:19 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 03:59 PM)Eran Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Uh not something I think about. I just automatically kinda know if it's worth holding or nah.

Mate, Of course you don't think about it haha. I'm asking you to think about it in theory. Everyone's "automatic" system is different!

Jake Johnson - June 1, 2022, 4:57 pm

If I were to think about it and put a time on it I'd say like 3-4 seconds depending on who it is. If it's someone who is elderly or disabled of course I'd wait as long as it took for them to get to the door.

However, if it's somebody who is perfectly able-bodied and they see me holding the door yet they purposely drag their feet along to go as slow as possible then I am more geared towards letting the door close.

Overall, most people do hold the door if they see or know someone is coming. However, you also have those people who seem totally oblivious to anybody else and just let the door slam when I'm inches away from grabbing it from them.

Nullusia - June 1, 2022, 5:58 pm

More so distance, rather than time. If they're over like 2 meters away I generally don't if I don't know them

TikTokCash - June 1, 2022, 6:01 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 05:58 PM)Nullusia Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) More so distance, rather than time. If they're over like 2 meters away I generally don't if I don't know them

Totally get that. Also how fast they're walking.

Nullusia - June 1, 2022, 6:01 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 06:01 PM)TikTokCash Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Totally get that. Also how fast they're walking. For real. I guess except elderly/disabled if I was aware they were anywhere close by I'd wait regardless of distance/time

TikTokCash - June 1, 2022, 7:57 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 03:19 PM)SoulHarvester Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I will wait as long as it takes if it's elderly or disabled people.

Hot woman maybe 3 mins?

Friends 0

Family 2.5 seconds (Best I could do)

This made me laugh. thanks.

Upgrader - June 5, 2022, 4:09 pm

5 seconds if they're not actively coming in, until they come in if they're approaching.

Disease - June 6, 2022, 7:08 pm

(Jun 1, 2022 03:15 PM)TikTokCash Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you had to put a number of seconds to it, how many seconds do you wait for people before you decide it's not worth holding the door?

For me, it's 5 seconds.

Once I commit, I'll hold it as long as they take to get to the door. But if they stop and aren't walking, then sure I'll stop and move on. Definitely have found myself in situations where I underestimated how slow someone was, and ended up holding the door for an awkward amount of time. But oh well, shit happens. I think it would be incredibly rude to begin to hold it, and then just stop, if they're actively walking in.

SIM-5244392 - October 3, 2022, 4:04 am

Approximately 3 seconds then I'm done

DashPHP - October 3, 2022, 4:49 am

Never measured it that way, i'd consider how far they are from the door and if its close enough i'll just hold it.

Charlie Sheen - October 3, 2022, 6:53 am

I like to hold it open and stare when they are still deep in the parking lot so they have to run up to me.

Shaggy - October 5, 2022, 2:44 am

Friends - 10 Seconds

Family - Minutes

Strangers - 2 Seconds

WheeledCord - October 5, 2022, 2:46 am

3-10 seconds, depending on who they are.

SIM-5244392 - October 5, 2022, 3:07 am

Not long that's for sure use it or lose it

ENViOUS - October 5, 2022, 8:37 am

I'm only going to hold the door for about 3 or 4 seconds before I decide you don't respect my generosity and I just shut it on you.

Goku - October 5, 2022, 8:46 am

Never had a situation where I had to wait too long (longer than 5 seconds).

When in transit, I hold the door open and move while holding it. If you are not on time, and I'm not bothered to hold it unless you're handicapped or old.

Vitani's Mate - October 5, 2022, 8:49 am

A few seconds, after that it will just get annoying.

BiNBo - October 5, 2022, 8:57 am

About 4 months, or as far back in the grave this thread was dug from.

In all seriousness though lol I'd hold it for as long as it took for the person to reach the door. If they're a mile away and I've just stopped real quick to see if they're coming to the door, they might be on there own.

Seaking - October 5, 2022, 9:02 am

A few seconds, but if I see it's someone that needs it I'll hold it open as long as needed. I can't stand the people that act like you owe it to them to hold the door.