I'm Stanley HF's helper bot. The OP (original poster) of this thread wants everyone to see this page and has elected to bump it to the top of the showthread listing. Since HF doesn't want a ton of LQP (Low Quality Posts) this is the best method of bumping your content. There is a small ?yte fee for each bump. Any OP can bump any of their threads on HF from the linked icon on the top of their first post.

If you haven't already read the first post of this thread we encourage you to do so.

Thanks,
Stanley

If you're reading this it's a safe bet that you post nearly everyday anyways, why not earn half a grand in the process? Honestly.

This is an excellent Event by OP and the Warrior Group. This will definitely improve activity in the forums to a certain extent and also would encourage more and more people to participate in the forum actively.

I will be also participating in this. And thanks for keeping the submission days for 10 days as i was on vacation so would just come to check in and just lurk for a few minutes a day past 5-6 days :)

Also i had a doubt, The Memes can be sent throughout the 30 days or just the first 10 days.

EDIT: also had one more question. I created my thread say on 5th of June and i submitted my thread on 9th of June so all the points are counted from the creation date right and not from the date of submission (obviously following the rules mentioned in the thread)

Memes can be submitted throughout all the 30 days. As for your second question, I think all the replies count from the 5th of June. Not 100% sure about this one though. Just make sure you submit only one thread from The Longue, and other 2 from other forums ?

The posts are automatically counted though. Someone submitted a very old thread and like 250+ posts were counted and shown in the scoreboard. Fixed now because Cap was alerted. But I think you're fine though, doesn't matter if you submitted it late as long as the thread was created in the submit time window ?

I had two more question, By non Lounge thread can it be anywhere like in the monetising section or social media services or giveaways section, etc.

And the other question was Is a HQ tutorial needs to be submitted as a thread or it can be a different submission than the threads which we are submitting in the event and these HQ tuts acts as a standalone way of earning 50 points?

Also if those are different then can we keep submitting HQ tutorials till the End of the contest ?

Apologies in advance for so many questions ?

With tutorials I think you should send Cap , Envy or Sky the tutorials to make sure there are eligible for points. 50 points is a lot, so the tutorial really needs to be HQ and ofcourse original/not posted before. And yes you can submit those until the end of the contest.

Sorry.

Contest started June 2nd and the deadline for thread submissions was the 12th.

Doesn't mean you still can't compete with meme submissions, start pumping them out!

Memes get tallied up closer to the end of the competition.

Ah I thought it meant 10 days from your first thread, but anytime during the month. That's fair enough then, wish everyone the best of luck!

Yes now either you can pump out those memes or you can submit HQ tutorials which you can then submit to the OP and if they approve you will get 50 Points for each HQ threads.

Good luck. I'm honestly looking forward to seeing more TUTs too, they're HQ and good SEO/PR for the forum. After my latest blog submissions are in, I should have the Golden Content award, aiming for the Bronze Tutorial award too.

I'm working on a song submission atm, so I've slowed down on the rest atm - tried 2-3 tut ideas a few days ago but they really didn't kick off so couldn't finalize submissions on it.

I thought about working on a OpenBullet mega-thread but it seems Lions League already has that for OB & even config-making, so there goes that idea. :(

Relatable memes really makes you cry from inside- aka like this has happened with me ??

Raymond Reddington - June 21, 2022, 4:41 am

It's pretty hard to consistently get good memes while making like 100

Probably applies to almost every submission but ig people will just submit more memes than tuts anyway because of the effort-reward imbalance between tutorials and memes.

While the former takes around at least 1-2h (maybe more, some of my tuts took 3-4h+) to create and structure a proper thread, the latter just takes 10mins to pump out 50+ points worth of memes in one go. I'm fairly surprised that other members haven't entered in some tuts, I wouldn't mind having to battle it out on all fronts rather than just making it a meme war. I mentioned this to Cap, it would be pretty pointless to have everything relying upon memes (plus, I also make memes about this imbalance occasionally)

Some of them (eg. L33Ts getting bullied in the old HF, and reputation being such a big deal) used to be very relatable happenings in the forum.

I'm trying to convince myself that it's all worth it for the elusive Royalty award. GL to everyone else, that's pretty much the only prize I care about. It would be a tale in HF history if I were to am able to get Royalty via KOTH, MOTM, and award goals such as Bronze Tut, Golden Content all within the same month.

Song submission coming soon, and I'm sure everyone would like it :)

I will not submit 600 memes the last day if you share the $500 with me ? since you only want the award

Also, I agree with everything you just said. Me along with The Warriors didn't discuss the rules thoroughly and adding a potential maximum meme submit limit. But I can only say that Cap and everyone involved put A LOT of time and effort in this event. Shame it doesn't have more competition.

Who says I don't have more than 600 memes up my sleeve :)

If only the award was reserved for the highest tut submissions :(
That kinda made it like the new MOTM; I remember when I really wanted the MOTM back when I was active and bought Legends and it stopped right around then.

But you're right tbh, there should have definitely been more activity on this contest, it's probably the best contest of the year hosted by Warriors, kudos to the leadership to planning it. In either case, it has been a great way in propping up activity on HF and bringing HQ content to the site. If you're asking me, there should have been a meme threshold or points-scaling system (reduction after first X memes) to incentivize tuts more.

In any case, I'm going to work on more tuts if I get the time. Its just a burden prepping memes and tuts at the same time.

But ya surprised as well, that not many people did participate in this. But i think for this competition if anybody one of us posted 1k memes as well, it would not be against the rules per say, as it is within the rules ? LMAO.

Yup, I agree. Although I wouldn't really feel that bad losing if someone brings out more tuts to compete for the first prize. Tutorials as submission if anything are HQ and help the forum out too (contributes to good SEO and more blog articles for HF simultaneously)

I've been posting them in relevant sections (Hacking Tuts help you on progress towards the Bronze Tutorial award) and linking them to Cap in our convo.

I've also been posting them on the blogs as I've structured threads accordingly (blog posts don't have the 15 image per post limit so there's that)

Good luck bro, I'm rooting for you and for more competition to show. I extol those who willingly write tutorials for the forum while it seems memes may be easier points. It isn't an easy choice (I'm doing both myself atm, trying to maintain a proper balance between them)

If it's any consolation, writing tuts can get you closer to the Bronze Tutorial Medal & Golden Content award goals. I've personally eyed those for quite a while now and I should be able to get them within June itself now.

I must admit I didn't think out the tutorial part of the contest thoroughly. I immediately brushed it off because I'm not really skilled with advanced tech stuff enough to post a HQ tutorial. However yesterday someone from the Warriors offered to buy a couple of Bytes Bag awards if we submit a HQ tutorial, and it can also be a life tutorial. Well I didn't think of that earlier, I have some passions and I can definitely write a couple of guides, so I'll probably submit a few before the contest ends.

Also, my bad, I edited my last post. I meant 300+ memes the last day, not tuts lol.

I am shit at tutorials. I either make it really long and with too much details or I just make it quick and full of mistakes. Memes will probably be my saving grace for the top 3 spot.

Oh, yeah then I agree. It'd definitely it'd be a lowlife move to just hoard memes and post it at the end, the same concept with auction-sniping applied for a contest, jeez. My next few memes have a few that are related to the song submission, so I'm trying to get that in before I submit more. (almost 80% done, making some album art and finishing it soon)

Tutorials can be anything, doesn't really have to be tech-related. The Hacking Tutorials section has a bonus award for 10 tut submissions so I figure I'd go for that as well while I'm writing some tuts in my free time. They can be related to anything - marketing, music, design, e-whoring, life skills, fitness, opsec/osint, coding, reversing, photography, fashion - the list goes on. I know it might be a bit hard to write tuts with how easy meme points are in but I think some things should just be for the sake of HQ submissions and not just farming easy points.

It doesn't really matter, structuring mega-threads or having thousands of words isn't really 100% required for tutorials. Quite a lot of tuts can just e a few hundred words and dealing with anything simple (such as free trial, promo offers, etc).

Hopefully too many people don't pop out of the woodwork to attempt and snipe the auction. I guess I better go back to brainstorming & writing memes/tuts. Time's not really a luxury though atm

(Jun 22, 2022 06:26 AM)Raymond Reddington Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh, yeah then I agree. It'd definitely it'd be a lowlife move to just hoard memes and post it at the end, the same concept with auction-sniping applied for a contest, jeez. My next few memes have a few that are related to the song submission, so I'm trying to get that in before I submit more. (almost 80% done, making some album art and finishing it soon)

Tutorials can be anything, doesn't really have to be tech-related. The Hacking Tutorials section has a bonus award for 10 tut submissions so I figure I'd go for that as well while I'm writing some tuts in my free time. They can be related to anything - marketing, music, design, e-whoring, life skills, fitness, opsec/osint, coding, reversing, photography, fashion - the list goes on. I know it might be a bit hard to write tuts with how easy meme points are in but I think some things should just be for the sake of HQ submissions and not just farming easy points.

It doesn't really matter, structuring mega-threads or having thousands of words isn't really 100% required for tutorials. Quite a lot of tuts can just be a few hundred words and dealing with anything simple (such as free trial, promo offers, etc).

Hopefully too many people don't pop out of the woodwork to attempt and snipe the auction. I guess I better go back to brainstorming & writing memes/tuts. Time's not really a luxury though atm

Yeah, it just went over my head that I can actually write guides regarding life skills. Just finished one and posted in the Health Section. I still have a few coming, and I'm not done with memes as well. About 10 days left for the contest, however I'm really busy with other things irl, so I really hope someone doesn't make that move and snipe the contest.

Good going, checked out your thread and it's great.

Goes into quite depth about exercising, various workout splits, and recommended supplements. Definitely a good thread & knowledge for beginner/intermediate lifters. Another idea would be a thread regarding diet plans, calorie tracking (deficit/surplus), common tracking apps, and portion sizes. Could also elaborate about other types of diets like keto/IF.

Yes! Thanks for the idea! I have a lot of knowledge about keto diets, went through it myself with surprisingly good results. This will be my next project. Thank you!

This has been a pretty fun contest, thanks for making it interest.

It's a bit unfortunate to see the meme thread closed as I had a few more complimentary ones now

Sorry mate, I mean to say no offense intended lol. It's just a joke but he did get overtaken over the course of the last 24h of the contest.

End of the day though it was his decision not to submit any more memes/tuts which is why he ran short on points.
