

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Why you shouldn't join groups with buy ins | Avoid Coined | Advice on picking a group

Investor - June 9, 2022, 8:27 am

Generally wehn you buy into a group, you are a member at their leisure, and may be kicked at any time. Or if members, and leaders do not care for your conduct regardless of your contributions, or what you bring to the table you'll have wasted your money.

For example.

I make uncanny jokes, and am largely unfiltered because I take pride in freedom of speech.

Despite having plenty to bring to the table for coined my application was subsequently denied.

There are plenty of decent choices for groups, but it is highly recommended that you choose one that relates to your values, one who you have good relational ties with, and especially one where loyalty cannot be bought and sold on a whim.

The last bit being the most practical

You can explore group options here:

<https://hackforums.net/showgroups.php>

Perplex - June 9, 2022, 8:37 am

What if you just think 35$ is pocket money and you like the color?

Who gives a fuck about your butthurtiness :D

Investor - June 9, 2022, 8:45 am

(Jun 9, 2022 08:37 AM)Perplex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What if you just think 35$ is pocket money and you like the color?

Who gives a fuck about your butthurtiness :D

Keep it on topic, this is about picking a quality group not a shittier buy-in skull - June 9, 2022, 8:46 am

Having a group comes with the privileges of denying, removing and blocking anyone for whatever personal reason.

Get over it and find a group that tolerates mass shooting jokes.

Prox - June 9, 2022, 9:09 am

Whether or not you buy into a group, what a member says is some degree a reflection of the group they are in. Freedom of speech doesn't apply to websites or groups that have rules or standards.

Like you said, if your values are making jokes about mass shootings I'm not sure if this forum is the right place for you.

Lilith - June 9, 2022, 9:32 am

Dude doesn't want people who treat school shootings as a joke in his group, not sure how that's surprising. Just because you bought into the group doesn't mean you can then do whatever you want as if you don't inherently represent that group.

jcole - June 9, 2022, 9:36 am

The only reason I think buying in to a group is unacceptable is these newly registered users who come to the forum, and buy L33T or a membership to a buy-in group and then try to sell methods that costs thousands of dollars, and expect to be reputable when in reality when you do some research on their profile they are more than likely a multi.. I would think it is every member of this forums best interest or at least mine to keep members of this forum from getting scammed.