Thread: Gmail phone verification bypass when creating account?

threats - June 15, 2022, 11:50 pm

This might be a dumb question but I would like to know if anyone knows how to bypass phone verification when creating a gmail account (for browser or Emu).

Sometimes I can just skip the phone verification without doing anything but I don't know what triggers it.

Just pretend to be underage if you are creating new gmail account on your computer.

You can also create new account on mobile device and it shouldnt ask for phone.

then just like i said pretend to be underage, you will not need phone number, only another email address
