Thread: If someone offered you \$10,000 every time...

Jake Johnson - June 16, 2022, 6:01 am

If someone offered you $10,000 every time they punched you in the face, how many times would you want to be hit?

How much does money talk to you? Would you let someone punch you in the face over and over again to keep making $10,000 for each punch?

znc - June 16, 2022, 6:09 am

Depends on the person and his punches. I'm taking them until it starts to feel like permanent damage is coming.

Upgrader - June 16, 2022, 6:11 am

Considering some lower level UFC fighters only get paid $10,000~ per fight. If it's all at once I'd take 50~, if it's spread over a period such as a day as many as I can take.

Yea just imagine if it was like one of the world's strongest men or something like that.

I never even compared it to how much some low-level UFC fighters make per fight. I would say for this scenario the punches are all at once. Spreading it out over time would be too easy I think. Even if the punches were from like the world's strongest man.

If it was Tyson Fury, then zero times. If it was my wife, throw in a french maid's outfit, and I'd pay her.

Ohhh, I thought you meant I read it wrong ?

Yeah, some fighter pay is crazy low. $10,000 is not worth the risks imo but the main cards can secure more than $500,000.

Net Hustler - June 16, 2022, 6:51 am

10 to 20 times you can get hit a good 10 to 20 times without being concussed or having serious head injury it is an ez 100k straight.

Azythum - June 16, 2022, 7:13 am

None i think. I want to make money with my brain still working at its highest potential.

Yea $10,000 seems way too low to me with the risks that come with it. However, I get that new fighters do have to start somewhere.

That's what I'm saying too! I guess the scenario would be better fitted if you didn't know who was going to be punching you in the face. It would be like a 50/50 chance where it's either some crazy strong person or it's someone who isn't very strong or not a professional boxer etc...

Honestly, it would be a tough decision haha.

I would most likely just take one punch and buy a car (even if it's a stronger dude) and then call it a day haha

Probably not, however if someone wants to spar (as long as they're not a top-level fighter), I'm game.

I'm like 50/50 on this scenario. The way I imagined the question going would be it's a 50/50 chance of it being a professional fighter, strongest person, etc.. or on the other end being just an average person or "weaker" person throwing the punches. So you would take a risk not knowing how strong the punches would actually be.

Personally, any amount of money is worth voluntary brain damage if it would occur from getting punched in the face over and over again for $10,000.

Eran - June 16, 2022, 1:40 pm

Fuck man that's a harder question than getting punched in the face for $10,000!! I'd say punch me in the face 5 times for $10,000 before getting peed on. I don't think I could possibly let someone just pee on me. I'd probably instantly vomit if that happened as I would just have to sit there and watch it happen and feel it all over... ewww fucking nasty lol.

I have heard of people who have the golden shower kink but that is for sure not me lol. I can't even imagine what it's like having someone pee in your mouth...

I'd honestly probably be fine with $150K-$250K personally. Might come out from the experience better in the long run and enjoy the money better.

It would depend on how hard they can punch. Are we talking like Mike Tyson punches? If yes, then I would not get punched.

funtela - June 30, 2022, 4:46 pm

Probably just a few times lol. Don't want any permanent injuries

The Pact - July 1, 2022, 2:45 am

If it was a Leet they'd probably scam you.

Lyrice - July 1, 2022, 7:17 am

It greatly depends on the person.

I'd need $250 upfront for morphine before the "fight", and I'd probably go with 2 to 3 punches. $20,000 - $30,000 is a great amount of money to invest. 8% (stock yield) of $30,000 is $2,400, which is a nice little extra income per year.

Well, it depends upon the size, age of the person, and whether they have the knowledge of punching. If it's someone who knows exactly where to punch to knock you out then I would say it would even be more dangerous than getting into a fight because you would be standing still and eating the punch without any defense. So you could get knocked out in one punch and then if you promised to take more punches then you could possibly be permanently damaged or worse dead.

Isolate - July 9, 2022, 5:03 pm

I would take 20 punches to the face right now if someone offered me 10k per punch, that would set me up for the next couple years. Definitely worth it in the end.

Is there a form I can sign somewhere? I always carry a pen with me.
