1. Only dealing on hackforums
2. Record every instance of chat between you, and your customers for asset protection in case a deal dispute happens later.

These are all I can think of for now, what do you to do prevent someone from trying to pull a fast one on you?

3. Use a Contract, clearly communicate your terms and ask questions before going forward.
4. DOCUMENT EVERYTHING screenshots, and transactions id's (This can be used as evidence In a dispute or can prove your innocence easier to have and not need.)
5. Treat people you are doing business with respect and be smooth transparent and quick as possible.

use middleman, it takes some time to arrange a middleman but its worth it.
write proper contract terms when i sell i always send everything on hf convo and require buyer to confirm i often reject people from purchase and they insult me, but i got used to it

This is solid advice, any tips on dealing with sales trashers. As noticed looks like you're competition likes to fuck around and find out with you.
