Thread: The Great Pyramids of Egypt

Verified Social - June 29, 2022, 1:27 pm

I've read recently that pyramids used to bring power to Egyptian people i dont know how to explain it but i dont trust it at all , what do you think about it ?

Upgrader - June 29, 2022, 1:29 pm

I personally don't believe in any of the strange theories relating to the pyramids, although some of it is quite unique.

Nullusia - June 29, 2022, 2:13 pm

I love theories on the pyramids. I mean how they were made at a time where techonological resources are nowhere near as they are now, is very intriguing you have to , its 7,000 years building that still stand so far against the storms , wind , sun , people , even more and still stand like it was built last year or so .

till this days we still do not understand how they make it and how it was built there's alot of opinions but non of it 100% sure it have rooms inside and the amount and size of stones are incredible how they make it without forklifts without any technology

Gary - June 29, 2022, 3:02 pm

I think the most interesting thing that I've read is that it might have taken 600 years to build one of the great pyramids. I believe in most people's minds it took them a couple years.

Pretty cool I guess. Didn't they find an empty space within one of the big ones recently but they have no idea how to access it?

mcbongwater - June 29, 2022, 3:22 pm

Let's go chip at it until me make a fire with the stone and then create solar electricity d Alr flowing walls and start a new colony.

Well I can agree to one thing They are Huge and would have required immense amount of man power to built. Apart from it these theories not a big fan of them for sure.

This is the coolest thing I've seen regarding the pyramids. How the hell did these people so long ago calculate the exact angle to project sounds to make bird calls :O

Ultras - June 29, 2022, 7:04 pm

I don't have any theories myself but it's interesting that pyramids around the world were built in a straight line.. Maybe coincidence, maybe for some reason we don't understand. All I know is that there is a lot we don't know about the past, and we will probably never know for sure

Yes in the beginning of this exploration they said it might be the grave of King Tut but they have no idea how to reach inside even robots getting stuck when they try to bring em in but yet , still nobody can confirm or deny anything and still nobody can access those rooms which i believe its secured because its so valuable maybe some gold or so inside xDD jkk

I've been when I was young, I've always wanted to go again as I was very small, maybe 7 ish I think, so it's different to experience it as an adult. I still remember going in a pyramid vaguely, but I really need to refresh the experience

Are you from egypt? Might be a while until I can visit

My wife went to Hurghada for a wedding a year ago and got COVID and literally was stuck in the country, so it became a really bad experience for her, feels like it's the last place she'd want to go again just based off the whole experience of being trapped there in a room with nobody (she was the only one out of a group of friends who tested positive so she was stuck alone in the hotel room for like 2 weeks)

Yes im from Egypt , i can invite you and your wife one more time with better plan im happy that your wife made it to home safe <3 since u talk about covid yes there was extremely important to keep her safe and in quarantine till her get better it was tough to see the world like this but thanks god its all gone now , hurghada unlike any other city it have better and prefect health care for the visitors i personally had the same experience of getting covid and i got it from airport im sure last thing i would say i can have you on my home im alone here and u can even take the up stairs of mine its all good :3

Pat13nt_Zer0 - June 30, 2022, 9:29 am

Definitely intriguing and I think that anybody who brushes them off without thought or says they have never wondered is full of shit, I mean how could you not? Something that old, that size, with architecture that we today cant fathom.....?

I would love to go and see them and would die at the chance to be allowed to go adventuring for myself lol. Obviously that will never happen but I do think that more people have explored and found way more than they let on with the general public. Thats just my theory.

yorickx - June 30, 2022, 9:38 am

Thats a artifact from ancient civilizations and a reminder that theres much more to reality like a time capsule

Blunt - June 30, 2022, 9:40 am

Damn I did not know it took 600 years to build that's right , they still trying to explore and trying to explain their language , its hard but we still learning and alot of people around the world try to learn it aswell , they was too advanced than we are now , they have alot more to give to the world like the power and how they manage it , how they made those arts if there was no machines on their time , its all by hands !

search for king tut mask and tell me what you think ?

Most likely some sort of "treasure", but I don't know why you'd want to open up a room and expose yourself to potential diseases.

Probably fucking aliens no cap

bevc - July 1, 2022, 2:17 am

The pyramids are extraordinary, as a feat of human engineering, and that they were the tallest man-made structure for thousands of years, is incredible.

Did you know, that Cleopatra's lifetime was closer to now, than to the buildings of the pyramids of Giza? She would have looked on them as ancient history.

Beherit - July 1, 2022, 1:31 pm

Maybe they're right about that. This frequency music does something to me that I can't explain:

I believe it is a conspiracy. Some people also claim that pyramids were used to communicate with aliens. But for me also these things are hard to believe.
