Thanks a lot mate. Best of luck to you.

Gonna wait on a review of the vouch copy. I've got an arsenal of old bottled accounts that could have some survivors in there. Would be fun to check. Good luck with sales!

Do you sell any combo list to go with?

While this looks like a tempting product since I deal on a daily basis with applications involving checkers, bruters, and configs; the pricing model seems a bit flawed, because as a log seller, I generally have to check quite a lot of accounts which filters down to only a small % of actually sellable accounts.

The capture data is very detailed and ordered in a tabular structure, it seems pretty good for filtering output as per user requirements (eg. Inactives, Rank, BE/RP).

Running 100,000 checks to filter for capture would literally cost $15,000 at the current prices (assuming we're running a hitlist acquired from a bruter and not a random combolist). Filter out a % as banned and dead accounts and still the costs are hefty. Are 2FA accounts filtered out or also included as valid checks?

Is there any catch to this? Do you perform the checks over the cloud and have your own proxy pool functional? (hence no proxy costs while running the checker)

Riot and Valorant are still fairly easy to run atm, I presume there is no antibot protection or strict captcha requirements on their APIs as of the moment so I'd just like to know more about this in general. Definitely interested because I use Python & Bash scripts to filter logs at the moment as none of my checkers are using a GUI yet.
