Hey, my idea for it is possibility to filter threads/posts using category, now if someone has more threads/posts in different categories viewing it in an interesting category is difficult

This already exists. Go to your profile, click the threads or post count for yourself, and then click the "Forum" column to sort by forum.

Yes but if someone has example 1000 posts, search interesting category can be a bit time-consuming, that's only sort category from desc/asc not for specific

You can do an Advanced Search for a specific member's posts within a specified forum.

This does not field your suggestion fully, but it may help you gain insight into what you're looking for (to determine if a post in a certain category even exists).

Goes to somebody's profile

Look at their post count

Click the # icon next to their post count
