Thread: What's your favorite kind of apple?

Deformed - July 24, 2022, 10:10 am

With all the politics dividing us, let's all find some common ground

What's HF's favorite kind of apple? Discuss and reinforce your answer.

I think there are too many for a poll, but personally I prefer Gala apples. They aren't too sweet, and not too strong.

I used to be a Golden Delicious enjoyer, but somewhere down the road my taste buds stopped enjoying them.

(Located in the US, no idea if that has any bearing on apple availability)

You know, I remember not liking Granny Smith as a child, so I really haven't tried one in years. I think next time I go to the store I should grab a few different varieties. Probably should've done that before making the thread....

Yeah I can relate when I was younger I wasn't a fan of the red apples and only ate the green ones now that I'm older I enjoy all different types of apples.

What kind of satanist calls it a green apple.

But I agree, Granny Smith is the way to go.

Pink Lady ones are good.

An apple is always good.

Justin - July 25, 2022, 5:27 am

They're called Red Delicious or Delicious Red in my country. Red and shiny ones you find in the grocery stores.

I like these a lot, but the golden ones aren't my cup of tea, and the green ones are 2nd to the red ones for me.

?nxy - July 25, 2022, 5:30 am

SIM-5232013 - July 27, 2022, 3:58 pm

I do not have a favorite but rather a bunch of favorites. It really depends on the mood. Sometimes I go for Honey Crisps, Granny Smith, Pink Lady, and so on. In other words, All Apples matter!
