Thread: Hack gmail password reset code from non working number

flynnlives - July 25, 2022, 12:09 pm

I need to get a password reset code from my gmail account that routes to my old phone number that's no longer active.

My provider won't let me have it. Does anyone have a phone spoofer that can pick up those reset emails?

I mean reset text messages.

By no longer active, you tried to call it ?

It could have been reassigned to someone else, and if that's the case, the best shot is to call the person, explain the situation and hope they'll give you the code.

I think you should call that person and explain all things with honesty. It may he give the reset code.

it is possible with phone spoofing to send text messages or phone calls outgoing. but not incoming text messages.
