Thread: AI Generated Avatars - Free, Epic, Creative Graphics

?lixir - August 15, 2022, 11:38 am

Good afternoon HF,

I am doing a giveaway for AI-generated Avatars for any digital profile. All I need is a text prompt, style, and details.

AI I am using is midjourney.com

Rules:

<https://midjourney.gitbook.io/docs/content-and-moderation-policy>

How?:

Give me a seed image and or text prompt.

Guides:

User manual for prompts

How to troubleshoot prompts/the correct formatting

I'm paying for the top-tier subscription which includes private rendering, so all rendered graphics are not shared outside of this thread.

Prompt: ""HACK FOURMS"::2; A group of hackers meeting at a conference; Detailed people::2 --ar 16:9"

Don't be afraid to add scene details, points of view, mix styles, and realities!

Sorry normal users, you can't upload custom avatars anyway.

Seems funny, willing to test one out for me?

Dagobert duck with dollar sign eyes, realistic, smoking a cigar.

Let me know if it's too hard for the AI.

It tried its best, the renders horrifying at best.

I wonder if this prompt is being censored. The 6th image and 3rd quadrant are my favorite.

Pfff, crazy what Artificial Intelligence can do in graphic design already. Imagine if we can do this today. What can we do 5 or 10 years from now?

Oh, I agree. I noticed with this specific AI, it can handle scenes, and detailed environments, but only one object. It will start to merge objects together.

Example:

"Massive tsunami approaching a populated and thriving ancient city of Atlantis, Populated, people panicing, chaos, devastating and dramatic, dark greens and deep blues, cold,dark day, aerial view, wide shot, ocean, epic landscape, immersive, highly detailed, cinematic lighting , hyper realistic, 8k"

This is pretty amazing! It's almost insane.

Do you own the AI software or paid a developer for this software?
Or is this a subscription off a website?

I would really like to see how far this AI generated software can reach.

So here goes:

Bloodthirsty dragons soar and hover the dark orange skies over a barren land littered with bones that looks like remains of colossal sized creatures, a stoic man with a shredded and muscular build, stands by the top of a desolate and lone tower smoking a cigar with hands that almost looks like claws from a dragon, overlooking the forsaken piece of land, devoid of life.
