Unlike other services, our service is aimed to be 24/7 automated and will start immediately (immediately means, you give the link to the bot and you can refresh the post page on reddit and see upvotes going up the same second (unless the host is offline, which could add a 10/20 seconds delay to start up)) to a general speed (unless massive orders in que) of 10 upvotes a minute

Just bought this service from the user. The order was fast and perfect. Op responded to all my questions in a quick and timely manner. Would 100% do business again.

The idea is to have a telegram bot, i have yet to write it im in the testing phase so order and manual submission for this week while comments will be implemented soon, i do not want to comment here ideas before i implement them but this will be the best customizable experience, of course the comments and everything will be custom :)

Upvoting is easy for creating a bot but the issue is making the upvotes register. Was this solved by residential proxies?

I can confirm that 100% of the purchased upvotes "register" and appear as upvotes on the topic.

Updated thread graphics, added link for the bot and for the Sellix.

* The bot is set to work automatically, There is currently a bug with the hosting (which I'm set to solve in a couple of days max) which makes me have to start the order manually, I receive a message the moment You make an order so if I'm online, it will start immediately. so if it's time sensitive i suggest you check if i'm online)
