Thread: AI Generated HF Logo

Omniscient - August 31, 2022, 11:16 am

I am considering doing a new HF Logo.

After seeing some AI generated avatars for Stanley I decided to check out what an AI could generate for HF.

<https://www.logoai.com/logo-maker>

I think I got a couple pretty cool ones.

I like this one the most. Obviously would change the colors. Any opinions?

Also this is probably a better way for you to see the logo.

What colour are you thinking about basing it around?

Like mentioned in convo, it looks good but the font is weird for me however you like it. Will take a bit getting used to seeing it.

I've legit got the same kind of feeling, takes me back to my college days.

However, I'm sure someone could whip something pretty decent up, HF has talented as fuck GFX users.

Cyam - August 31, 2022, 12:33 pm

Pretty sure someone would whip up a good looking logo if there was some kind of an award/bytes or even money contest

It looks like shit honestly. Can't really modernize a logo when the forum itself isn't modern.

Just pay the money and get one done professionally, or get multiple concepts. The only thing AI picture generation is good for is art and NFTs.

There are tons of talented GFX artists out there, even some on the forum who would jump on that in a heartbeat. Hold a competition or offer an incentive like you did with the sales tags, surely you remember the number of submissions you got, you're bound to get better results than this.

Omniscient - August 31, 2022, 2:36 pm

Quote:It looks like shit honestly. Can't really modernize a logo when the forum itself isn't modern.

I am going to do some layout changes to HF soon. Mainly change the logo, get rid of the background, and make some css adjustments. Unsure if it will be considered "modern" though. It may end up looking shit according to you. Do you think HF looks like shit now? Because if so, don't expect my choices going forward to ever please you.

I've always been disappointed in the past with the vision others have tried to place onto HF. Maybe because this is my baby and I want to mold it how I see fit. Almost every design aesthetic on HF is my personal decision. Maybe it's not the best looking site, but it's my creation.

I don't think HF looks like shit, I was strictly referring to the logo. But like you said, it does need adjustments.

Also don't blame you, I have a hard time letting anyone touch my work or even be part of a project, but sometimes you have to trust that others may know better. Sometimes what you need is someone on the outside looking in, rather than another person on the inside looking out.

This is obviously shit advice but I'll say it anyways, openly and not pertaining to anything specific:

Don't hold onto the past. You'll find yourself stuck while everybody adapts and eventually, moves on. Use the past as an experience, and as a reference to what you can improve on. Look towards the future, and be more open to new ideas even if it's as small as a design.

Graphics and artists are always evolving, you may be surprised at the results you get today compared to the results you got 3-5+ years ago.

Chez_Yuki - August 31, 2022, 3:30 pm

I just generated some image with Midjourney, there are a lot of good ideas, but none that fit into the style of the forum. These AIs are good for generating images, but as soon as there is text, it's still quite difficult...

But I think as above, try to hire someone professional for this, explaining well your vision, and you might be surprised.

In any case, here are the generated images:

This logo is literally absolutely perfect:

Omniscient - August 31, 2022, 3:49 pm

One of my biggest issues redesigning HF and changing any aesthetics is that this site is feature rich. And that almost all modern layouts are very minimal in features to cater to mobile users and apps. Some of the simplest websites are the biggest.

I know that discusses more than simply a few image and css edits but it's partially why I find it difficult to push HF into what may be considered a modern design. Would you agree that modern design uses minimalism?

NodeBB for example is lovely but it has almost no features compared to HF.

<https://community.nodebb.org/>

Xenforo is the closest HF can go to features and do you consider it a modern look?

<https://xenforo.com/community/>

Overall I don't consider forums like HF to be modern because they are not modern. They are relics of the internet. The best we can hope for is updated themes to match current trends.

HF has gone through 3-4 design changes in 15 years. I'd say it's time for a new design, just not sure how "modern" it's going to feel to most members.

And I do listen to feedback but "looks like shit" isn't constructive.

Personally I find that the 2 forums that you gave in reference are not good examples, precisely because they are "in the norm".

Personally, what I see on almost all the current forums is that they are all identical! It's good to want to do something modern, but if you break your originality, it's not necessarily a good thing...

In my opinion, HF needs a little makeover, but it must keep its unique style, which makes it a little different from others.

Otherwise you might as well take a basic template on bbpress and then have a site that is a clone of all the other forums...

Most definitely.

"I'd say it's time for a new design"

I agree, i browse lesser on HF because i don't like the colored themes, the squared like background, and the logo, if HF had more minimalistic theme (one with a light/dark switch, no other colors such as green and red) i would visit a lot more frequently, but whatever you decide to do, change that logo first please.

For the people who aren't used to change very quickly, give them an option to still use the old theme if they wish.

We'd lose many custom HF features probably permanently too. HF would just be another generic forum running Xenforo. I don't see that as a viable plan.

I love this logo.

Honestly, Omni all the forums you have mentioned look so generic. I hope that HF isn't going that way. It reminds of the time that Reddit took away the ability for custom subreddit design and came with the design that it currently has. So instead of custom designs per subreddit, everything looked the same and there was zero creativity.

XDA is the only forum I do appreciate its modern layout and design because it looks nice and is pretty useable. But that's because XDA is an established forum that had many feedback and changes. It still isn't perfect tho.

XDA: <https://forum.xda-developers.com/f/samsung-galaxy-s22.12511/>

All in all, I think that HF can be a game changer on how a forum should look/work. I think that what makes a forum special/useful is being able to post in a category that is specific to your topic, and at the same time being able to get attraction to your topic.

What I love about HF is how you can make your profile look unique and recognizable (With groups, awards, sig etc).

What it is for me is really the overall vibe of it. How the font used to be, how post layouts used to be, prestige, that dark green reputation number on the right, and the max of 3 rows of awards was the most anyone had onsite at the time. I believe Platinum was the first to reach 3 full rows, or it could've been Connected, definitely one of the two though. I think Bull was the first to get past 3 rows too.

Honestly, I've been around a fair amount of time & lurked here since the dark ages. There is a lot of nostalgia with the old themes and the original "outdated" feel we've got going on here. However; change is good. Especially when it comes to modernising and updating a site. I feel new users can be deterred these days if the site isn't clean looking

Personally, I use and develop on XenForo for one of my partner forums and it's a fairly simple ground to build on, and it's also PHP based, so a lot of things are transferable once you've got the built-in functions down & read the documentation, etc.

I've had a crack at a logo too; see below.

I feel new users can be deterred these days if the site isn't clean looking

Personally, I use and develop on XenForo for one of my partner forums and it's a fairly simple ground to build on, and it's also PHP based, so a lot of things are transferable once you've got the built-in functions down & read the documentation, etc.

I've had a crack at a logo too; see below.

This is nice, Id use it.

Game you should make some Desktop Wallpapers with that logo.

Been a minute since HF had a good thread with HF Wallpapers.

Thanks for the idea, I'll work on some things with it if you think they'll be used.

I'll make a vector of the logo and package it abs send it over to you.

He most likely upgraded to R00t when it was an option instead of Ub3r and when R00t was made defunct it may have carried over for his Ub3r instead of the blue sapphire award we all know and love. As for the missing userbar on his profile, I have no idea about that one lol.

(I do really love that Diamond of Hell though, definitely my type of award)

OT: Speaking of AI generated HF logo's, this just gave me a cool idea. Will report back lol.

Lol the R00t upgrade used to be like the Ub3r upgrade once upon a time, but then was eventually done away with and whoever happened to have purchased R00t during that time, iirc anyway, those people got free Ub3r as a replacement. That's why you'll see some people with a Diamond of Hell award and not the description of; "Evil Donation" but instead "Thanks" - just like the Ub3r award description.

Hope that makes more sense.

Honestly, I'm not sure.

I had Ub3r, purchased by another user as a gift.

I think it expired and something went wrong during the process of reverting me back to l33t.

My perms and everything reverted to l33t, but the userbar stayed Ub3r. I didn't really think anything of it or take much notice as I thought it was client sided through cache or something.

It seems to have been resolved now though.

Good spot. :)

I fixed it. Something with bans.

I am not interested in a logo contest. If you want to make a logo and submit it to me then that's fine.
I'm not offering any prizes.

I guess the question is,

Are you even interested in a new logo? or just entertaining the idea?

Yes, I am interested in a new logo. Just not prepared to do much about it right now, like run a contest. I got other things to work on.

Do you want it more 3D like the current one? Or you'd take flat, modern logos into consideration too?

I might send you some submissions in DM-s

You should design a variety, keeping the theme in mind. There's no specific criteria but it would need to be both aesthetically pleasing and go well with the theme which isn't set to change anytime soon.

Perhaps look at past logos and use them for motivation, whilst innovating them with your own creativity.

A top tip, would be to remember that Jesse likes the nostalgic feel of HF that makes HackForums well... HackForums.

I would also suggest making a design that you could adapt for each theme colour.

The most important advice is... do you, be creative.

Kind regards,
Zulu.

HF has been very helpful to me , the best forum that i've been.
with prize or not im still going to participate on making a new logo for HF .
im going to pm you a preview in 48-72 hrs ?

edit: nevermind this, HF already has a new logo so i guess it's not needed to make a new one.

Too bad someone who scammed a bit recently used the generic laptop photo. Ruined the image for me personally.

Lol, just used a random icon!

sleepx - September 9, 2022, 12:31 am

As a new member, I personally was attracted to the site from the logo. Something about it just grabs you, I think you should keep the original until you truly find something that you fall in love with.

So I actually like this, it matches the overall HF theme, but it sort of looks uh, I don't wanna say generic as well but I have to agree; it's kind of plain. It's that typical "hackerman laptop" avatar splashed in the center of an HF logo. I like the font and colors (I'm sure the Warriors group would like the colors as well lol), but that's about it from it.

Yeah, unfortunately there's loads of generic and plain laptop or hacker laptop avatars out there. However there's literally one member I can think of off the top of my head with a genuinely cool and badass "hacker laptop" avatar.

He won't let us losers design anything, No, but an AI? Genius, what a flex

Looking forward to seeing what HF will look like after this change period though anyway.

I actually love that. Any way you can get our Hacker Dude in it? If you need a good file LMK. I have it.

I'd like to see some revisions on that. With dude, without. Adding our motto (Packets, Posts, and Punks). Also how it looks with all 3 of our BG shades.

Yeah sure, you can send me the hacker source file or whatever you have

Will also do the three versions tomorrow and send you with the different backgrounds
