

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: is this forum illegal based? whats up with the ads/ services offered here?

coginzition - September 7, 2022, 12:44 am whats going on?

i remember using this forum back in 2013 , back in 8th grade learned to play around with wireshark and kept getting ppl's ips and ddosing them on some game .

most fun i had ever im scared to stay here lol, not interested in being on a list. although im genuinely interested in learning coding and other related topics.

Eran - September 7, 2022, 3:38 am

May I suggest reading the Help Docs, you will find all your answers there.

Bluffer - September 7, 2022, 10:55 am

Generally browsing hf is pretty safe. I do it at work all the time (hide the logo though).

Certain activities that you might partake in here could lead to real life legal issues. It's something you should be weary of.

The only issue in just being a member here that I'm paranoid about is crossing the border from Canada to the United States, simply because Federal investigators in the US have investigated and indicted members of this forum for their activities on here. If they seen hf on my phone I'd probably be interrogated about my activities here which is a reason to be paranoid. Even though I don't partake in anything illegal here or anywhere.

SIM-1729678 - September 7, 2022, 10:58 am

The average age of the 8th grade is 13–14 years old, this would mean, that in the worst-case scenario, you are now 22/23.

If you are actually scared to stay on a forum that is available on the normal web, you might as well cancel your internet subscription and go prepping for a nuclear war.

/Cya

DashPHP - September 7, 2022, 11:22 pm

HF is absolutely a safe place to learn computer skillz.

It's not 2013 anymore, a lot of rules and regulation has come into play. :)

Pow3r - September 8, 2022, 9:45 am

(Sep 7, 2022 11:22 PM)DashPHP Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) HF is absolutely a safe place to learn computer skillz.

It's not 2013 anymore, a lot of rules and regulation has come into play. :)

This basically. It was a lot more Wild West back in 2008-2012 but major changes were made. It's a place of learning and chilling, not illegality.

TheArchitect - September 8, 2022, 2:40 pm

The forum it's not illegal.

It's up to you how are you using your knowledge

Gary - September 9, 2022, 11:46 am

Too late, you're on a watchlist. The CIA, FBI and NSA are now tracking your location. They know where you are. They're closing in fast.

RUN...

Meet at rendezvous Yankee Oscar Uniform ' Romeo Echo BREAK Romeo Echo Tango Alpha Romeo Delta Echo Delta.

You'll find a bag there with a new ID cards, a phone and some cash.

Godspeed.

SOCACC™ - September 9, 2022, 11:59 am

(Sep 7, 2022 12:44 AM)coginzition Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) whats going on?

i remember using this forum back in 2013 , back in 8th grade learned to play around with wireshark and kept getting ppls ips and ddosing them on some game .

most fun i had ever im scared to stay here lol, not interested in being on a list. although im genuinely interested in learning coding and other related topics.

Wow! illegal based and adverts... ? Lists? ?

You are safer here than any other forum of this kind, the owners and teams keep it clean from blackhat activities, here we all come together to solve solutions or create new ways. It is a community driven powerhouse, safe and much better than those crazy sites you are looking at via Tor... a.k.a the "dark" web ?

Do just read the Help Docs, it is the stepping stones for success on this forum.

Refusal - September 9, 2022, 12:03 pm

This forum is not illegal.

Omni has addressed this in the past. This site has been around for many many years. This is not advertised as a blackhat community rather than a place to learn and discuss technology

Cyam - September 9, 2022, 12:23 pm

Blackhat stuff is not allowed to be posted here.

People who do it get their posts deleted and possibly account closure.

Then again, there are some things offered here that might be sketchy to an outsider, but as users above me wrote - it's up to you what you do with the knowledge and what kind of things you post on here.

Omni made it clear that NCA is on the forum

Lrrr - September 9, 2022, 2:15 pm

If you make even one post here, Interpol will hunt you down and put you in prison for life