

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[Guide\] Make money easily with mindless typing work \[Easy\]](#)

SIM-587985 - September 9, 2022, 8:35 am

Until speech to text technology improves, there is a surprisingly large market for transcription and typing CAPTCHA. And wherever there is a market, there will be some blokes trying to make a dollar or two.

A. CAPTCHA

So sometimes, robots need help getting past that little "I am not a robot" button. This is where you come in. You type the letters, or solve whatever CAPTCHA the websites throw your way. In return, the website pays you a little bit of money.

2capatcha – Pays you something like $0.26 per 1000 CAPTCHA you solve. I was able to get a payout of 25 cents on bitcoin cash within a day on this site. Even though it doesn't pay much per 1000 CAPTCHA, they do offer a software on there site that significantly speeds up the progress.

Kolotibablo – Pays a little bit more, between $0.31 and $1.10 for CAPTCHA. I have not been able to get a payment on it so far however, because it seems to abandon all progress you have made if you exit before you have completed 1000.

Kolotibablo also seems to really want you to use chromium and get a browser extension. Now I am a brave guy, and not really a huge fan of browser extensions, so I personally will stick to the other site.

B. TRANSCRIBING

Once you get a little bit quicker at typing, you can try your hand at a transcription gig. Transcribing is when you convert the audio from a file into a typed document using a computer and the little machines connected to your arms.

For every music lyric, video subtitle, and deaf opera there is a dedicated average Joe clacking away behind the scenes. And pretty much anyone can do it, as long as you have a stable internet connection.

Now unless you are on a freelancing website, almost all transcription jobs are going to pay through pay-pal for some reason. And since I have got a moral disagreement with pay-pal, I like the site <https://gotranscript.com/> because it also pays through Payoneer.

Related Posts:

Grayhat Porn Method