Probably just a color issue with his camera. I think the squid game rug was funnier.

SIM-4274998 - September 21, 2022, 4:01 pm

bunch of greedy baboons, they just did a x3 and didn't close their position?
that was funny asf ngl

Omniscient - September 21, 2022, 4:13 pm

I feel like I'm just watching Bustabit. Was not funny or entertaining to me.

SIM-4331310 - September 21, 2022, 11:17 pm

Anyone know Adrian Baba and what he did to coinfluence..?

RsGoldKing - September 22, 2022, 2:07 am

Leveraging is straight up gambling and haram.

Investing in crypto is a gamble all together, and according your threads you invest in crypto,
therefor you gamble that the value continues to go up.
That is haram according to yourself.

It is also haram to steal.

Your stealing money away from the Runescape developers who are trying to make an honest living, or why do you call yourself RsGoldKing?

Also what is this?

It is also haram to scam $400

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6092832>

Did you steal $400 from that guy or what?

I don't like it when a muslim say this is haram, that is haram, yet he does haram things himself. ?

My friend in Dubai was talking to me about how the UAE governments improving regulations for trading and crypto's and so on. And that's obviously a Muslim country.

Unless you don't know what you doing it's gambling it's haram once you know what you doing it's halal.

I have multiple muslim friends who are successful traders and they also say "It only becomes haram when you trade without a strategy, aka gambling".

That is not entirely correct however i can understand why many would consider that to be correct.

What is gambling?

Taking a risky action in the hope of a desired result.

Crypto trading is risky, with or without strategies, and when you start crypto trading you are hoping for a desired result therefor you are taking a risky action in the hope of a desired result which is the pure definition of gambling.

Any form of gambling is haram, according to the Quran.

Bullsht thats not the right definition of gambling, so you're telling me that when a I take a risk setting up a company without knowing wheter it will fail or succeed is gambling? lmao

Gambling is using money in a game or set of actions with a pre calculated percentage chance of winning or losing money.

Yes that would be an educated gamble, assuming you did some research before setting up this company lol, if you did no research it would be a pure gamble clearly.

You have to understand that the Quran was written before texas hold'em and slots machines were invented. ?

Also according to Oxford Languages the definition of gambling is "Take risky action in the hope of a desired result."

And Oxford Languages is the world's leading dictionary publisher, don't take that lightly.

Either way i wasn't talking about setting up companies, i was talking about crypto trading.
