Thread: New here, really enjoying it so far

Miropop - September 23, 2022, 12:35 pm

Hey everyone, I had forgotten to make an intro post when I joined the site. I've lurked for a while, and since joining, I've learned a lot.

I'm from the US, 29, and mostly interested in ewhoring, but looking into a few other things this forum can help me learn about to see what clicks with me. :)

Welcome to the forum, did ewhoring mainly 2016-2019 but there are many topics about it that will help you make a few hundred a month minimum.

Tech9 - September 29, 2022, 11:48 am

Well, the ewhoring is.. I'm not sure it's for me after all, but I'm trying with it anyway. I've had a look at some of the hacking stuff out of general curiosity and what not, but right now I'm experimenting with some methods I've learned on here so I can firstly get myself out of financial distress, and after that, I think I'm going to look more in-depth into coding in general. Making bots feels like something I'd be interested in.

JTheRipper - September 29, 2022, 7:11 pm

Welcome on board bro. I always wanted to try eWhoring but the effort seemed like too much to do for so little. Should I try it?

I think if you find the right methods to do it, it's really not as much work as it seems. Finding unsaturated packs might be an issue though, but there's some great ebooks/packs here on HF that are worth looking into, plus you could always take the time to make your own pack. I bought an ebook with some packs off here shortly after I signed up and it was super super helpful for learning how to autopilot a lot of the process. I think for me, the biggest issue is that I just have a hangup about flirting with dudes and trying to get them to buy stuff from me. As a lesbian, it's a bit cringe for me and I dont wanna use my own photos and videos either lmao? I haven't settled 100% on a method I'm going to use yet, still working out some wrinkles when it comes to receiving payments. Putting my own twist on some stuff I learned here, yknow how it is
